Farm-City Day Success For Butters

C.J. HOUGHTALING
Tioga Co. Correspondent

NAUVOO (Tioga Co.) — The crowds swelled to record-breaking proportions beneath the hot July sun at Silverlea Farm for the third annual Farm-City Day.

Hosting the event were the farm's owners, Raymond and Peggy Butters, and three of their four sons: Gary, David, Terry, and Glen and their families. While David and Terry work the farm full time, Glenn, a school teacher, helps out during the summer. Son Gary owns several businesses in the Mansfield area.

Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service employee and chairperson of the event, Sherri Elders, said although the registration sheets contained only 1,700 names, several of the hosts and volunteers she conferred with estimated at least half of those attending didn't register. "If that is the case, we had well over 3,000 people attending," said Elders, "but we'll say 2,700 to be on conservative side."

Chester 4-H Beef Club Holds Summer Show, Supports Center Fund

DOWNINGTOWN (Chester Co.) — The Chester County 4-H Beef Club recently kicked off its 1993 show season with the annual summer beef show held at the Devereux Show Barns in Downingtown.

Months after selecting a club calf, all the hard work in teaching the animal to lead, along with the feeding and grooming, should pay off with a blue ribbon.

There were 13 exhibitors who showed a total of 21 steers in four different weight divisions and three heifers in the breeding classes. The following is a list of show placings starting with the breeding classes.

Grand champion Angus heifer went to Jennifer Dunleavy of Glenmoore.

Reserve grand champion heifer went to Jason Marsch of Pottstown.

Grand champion Simmental heifer went to Jason Wagner of Spring City.

Lightweight Steers: 1. Jennifer Dunleavy - Glenmoore. 2. Sara Howe - Downingtown. 3. Donald Hodges - Downingtown. 4. Jennifer Dunleavy.

Mediumweight Steers: 1. Matt McAllister - Spring City. 2. Jason Wagner - Spring City. 3. Kasey McAllister - Spring City. 4. Shawn McFadden - Downingtown. 5. Dave Williams

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS - PART I FEDERAL-STATE

Trucklot buying interest continued to range light to fairly good. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were in close balance with trade needs. Some buying interest in larger size boneless skinless breasts without tenders went unfilled. Trading was reported at unchanged to higher prices but the undertone was cautious. Line run breasts were very tight and very little additional product was offered. Asking prices trended higher. Commited deliveries were shorted and product weights were lighter than desired. Dark meat items and wings were available and traded at unchanged prices. The trade sentiment was steady at best.

PRICES PAID PER POUND, ICE PACKED AND CO2 PACKED BROILER/FRYER PARTS, DELIVERED TO FIRST RECEIVERS IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES.

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was only fair at best, disappointing in some quarters. Offerings varied, but were noted adequate at most plants. Live supplies were mostly moderate. Weights were light to desirable. Processing schedules were very heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged to 1 cent higher at 54-65 cents. Trade sentiment was mostly steady, instances firm. In the parts complex, bone-in breasts were in light supply. Legs, leg quarters, and wings were moving into better balance. Thighs were slow to clear at some points. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were irregularly available.

PATENT PENDING

On July 31, 1790, the U S government issued its first patent, granted to Samuel Hopkins of Vermont, for a process of making potash and pearl ashes Signed by President George Washington, Secretary of State Thomas Jefferson and Attorney General Edmund Randolph, the patent was one of only three granted that year It was not until May 1802 that the Patent Office was organized as a distinct entity "to have charge of the issuing of patents," and consecutive numbering was not instituted until 1836 By 1833 about 9,000 patents had been issued and the Superintendent felt it was time for him to resign since "everything seems to have been done " Of course, the Office continued and has now issued over 4 5 million patents

OPINION

Non-point Pollution Finger Pointing

Farmers get blamed for over fertilization of their crops. It's called non-point polution because the source can not be identified. That makes it easy to point the finger at farmers when in fact others are also responsible.

"It's a common misconception that agriculture is the only source of excess phosphorus," said Karen Gartley, soil test program coordinator for the University of Delaware Soils Laboratory. "Recent studies and current soil test results indicate that homeowners also contribute unknowingly to the problem. While individual homeowners don't have large plots of land, collectively their impact on the environment is significant

"We know phosphorus levels are building up in the soil," Gartley said. "The laboratory processes 2,000 to 3,000 agricultural soil samples and an equal number of homeowner samples per year. Our records indicate that the median phosphorus level of all samples tested has risen from borderline low-medium in 1957 to high in 1992.

"Farmers, as a whole, are more aware of the problem and are apt to follow recommendations carefully since overapplication represents a production cost. Test records show that most farmers have significantly reduced phosphorus fertilizer applications, generally by using only low levels of starter fertilizer at planting.

"By contrast, phosphorus levels in many homeowner soil samples we've tested are off the scale," she said. "I just got a reading of 3,543 pounds of phosphorus per acre from one homeowner's samples.

"Some homeowners seem to believe that if a little bit of fertilizer is good, more will be better. What they don't realize is that this approach leads to environmental pollution and a harmful buildup of salts in the soil."

Now it can be said that the urban homeowner should be part recipient of the non-point pollution finger pointing too.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Minimize Crown Rots In Alfalfa

There are a variety of crown rots that affect alfalfa plants.

Plants' roots which have been infected with these rots will appear rotted or corky, and their color will range from off-white to black depending on the fungi causing the infection. Crown rot is not a single disease, but a complex of diseases caused by a variety of fungi which give similar symptoms.

Crown rots will cause a loss in yield in several ways. First, if the crowns are severely infected, they will simply rot and die. Second, because the rots affect the root, they will interfere with the plants' ability to store carbohydrates for winter survival. Third, some of the fungi produces toxins which will weaken or kill the plant directly.

University of Kentucky Extension Plant Pathologist, Paul Vincelli, offers several management suggestions to reduce alfalfa stand loss because of crown rots. First, select alfalfa varieties which are resistant to crown rots found in the area. Second, minimize field activities which will injure crowns, such as mowing or grazing when soils are wet. Third, practice longer crop rotations which will reduce the amount of fungi available to infect a new seeding of alfalfa. Fourth, maintain good soil fertility levels and balance between essential plant nutrients. Fifth, harvest at proper maturity to allow plants to maintain adequate carbohydrate reserves. This will help them resist diseases.

However, according to Vincelli, postponing harvest beyond early flowering will only reduce forage quality without improving disease control.

To Use Body Condition Scores

Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, reminds us body condition scores are a very useful tool in managing the dairy herd.

But it is only good if you use the information. It is a management tool that every good producer and consultant should be using.

Pennsylvania DHI and Raleigh DHI have options that allow producers to enter body condition scores. Once the scores are entered, you have the opportunity to summarize them in meaningful management reports.

When scoring cows, keep the process simple and try to do it when cows are already constrained for other work such as freshening, reproductive checks, breeding, and pregnancy checking. Another good time is about three months prior to drying off.

To Prevent Accidents Involving Children

What would you say is America's greatest killer of children? If you guessed leukemia, you guessed wrong. If you guessed child abuse, you are wrong again.

Preventable injuries from accidents are the number one killer of children age 14 and under. More children die annually from accidents than from all childhood diseases combined.

Each year more than 8,00 children die and at least 50,000 are permanently disabled by injuries. The most common types of injuries occur from traffic accidents, bicycle accidents, burns, poisoning, choking, or falls.

The following are some suggestions to make your home safer:

- Use child car seats and seat belts religiously
- Buy bike helmets and insist that children wear them
- Turn down hot water heater to 120 F or lower.
- Buy, install, and maintain smoke detectors
- Store poisonous cleaners, chemicals, matches, lighters, and small objects out of children's reach
- Set an example and practice safety conscious behavior.

Farm Forum

Editor:

I am really disappointed when I see our Farm Organizations urging their members to join Act 319 in order to have their farms assessed as a farm.

Every farm that produces food should be assessed as a farm, based on it's present use and not as future development land. This is what the Farm Organizations

A MAN NAMED "USEFUL"
July 25, 1993

Background Scripture:
Philemon
Devotional Reading:
1 Peter 2:4-10

That may seem a strange name for a man, but that was really the name of the runaway slave who became a convert to Christ and an associate of the Apostle Paul. It was a Greek name, Onesimus, and it meant "useful."

And that was ironic because, as a runaway slave, he had become "useless" to this former master, Philemon, a prominent layman in the church at Colossae. Not only had Onesimus run away, but he had taken some of his master's possessions. We have to remember that a master had full authority to do anything he wanted with a returned runaway slave. They were frequently put to death.

Then, somehow the paths of Onesimus and Paul crossed. We do not know where or how, but we know the end result: Onesimus became a follower of Christ, thus becoming "useful" to Paul as a coworker. Paul wanted to keep Onesimus with him and it was only with some probable reluctance that Paul and Onesimus decided that he should return to Philemon.

BOND TO COMMAND

That was risky business, for who knew what Philemon's attitude might be? Paul thought he knew, he had great admiration for Philemon. Paul is probably sincere in saying, "I thank my God always when I remember you in my prayers, because I hear of your love and of the faith which you have toward the Lord Jesus and all the saints" (v.4).

The key to what is going on in Paul's mind is his statement, "Accordingly, although I am bold enough in Christ to command you to do what is required, yet for love's sake, I prefer to appeal to you..." (vs. 8,9). If Paul had any inkling that Philemon would not rise to the occasion, I'm certain he would have commanded him to do the right thing.

It is always more desirable when someone does the right thing of their own choice. This is what Paul is saying: "...but I preferred to do nothing without your consent in order that your goodness might not be by compulsion but of your own free will" (v. 14). Whenever we can effect justice or compassion through persuasion, that is best. But, if we cannot, then there are times when we must resort to compulsion. It would have been wonderful if, back in the 1960's and '70's, we could have desegregated our schools and public facilities of everyone's free will. But, if we had waited for that, desegregation would still be a dream. "Free will" is best, but compulsion is often second-best if the issue in dispute is vital.

YOU OWE ME

I'm not sure that Philemon accepted Onesimus totally out of compassion, for Paul's letter, although diplomatic, is still pretty heavy-handed. First he tells Philemon how thankful he is for him. Then he reminds him that he could command him and then he says, "So if you consider me your partner, receive him as you would me" (v. 17). Failure to forgive and receive Onesimus will be like an affront to Paul--" to say nothing of your owing me even your own self" (v. 20). Paul also tells him to prepare a guest room because he hopes to visit him soon. Yet, with all this pressure Paul is applying on Philemon, the most telling persuasion of all is his definition of the new relationship which he and all Christians now have with Onesimus: "...no longer as a slave but more than a slave, as a beloved brother, especially to me but how much more to you..." (v. 16).

The very presence of this letter in the New Testament indicates that Philemon did the right thing and accepted Onesimus as his brother in Christ. I don't think the church would have preserved a letter that had failed.

Was that the end of it? We're not sure, but we know there was a man named Onesimus who became bishop of the church in Ephesus sometime after Paul wrote this letter. I like to think it was the ex-runaway slave named "useful."

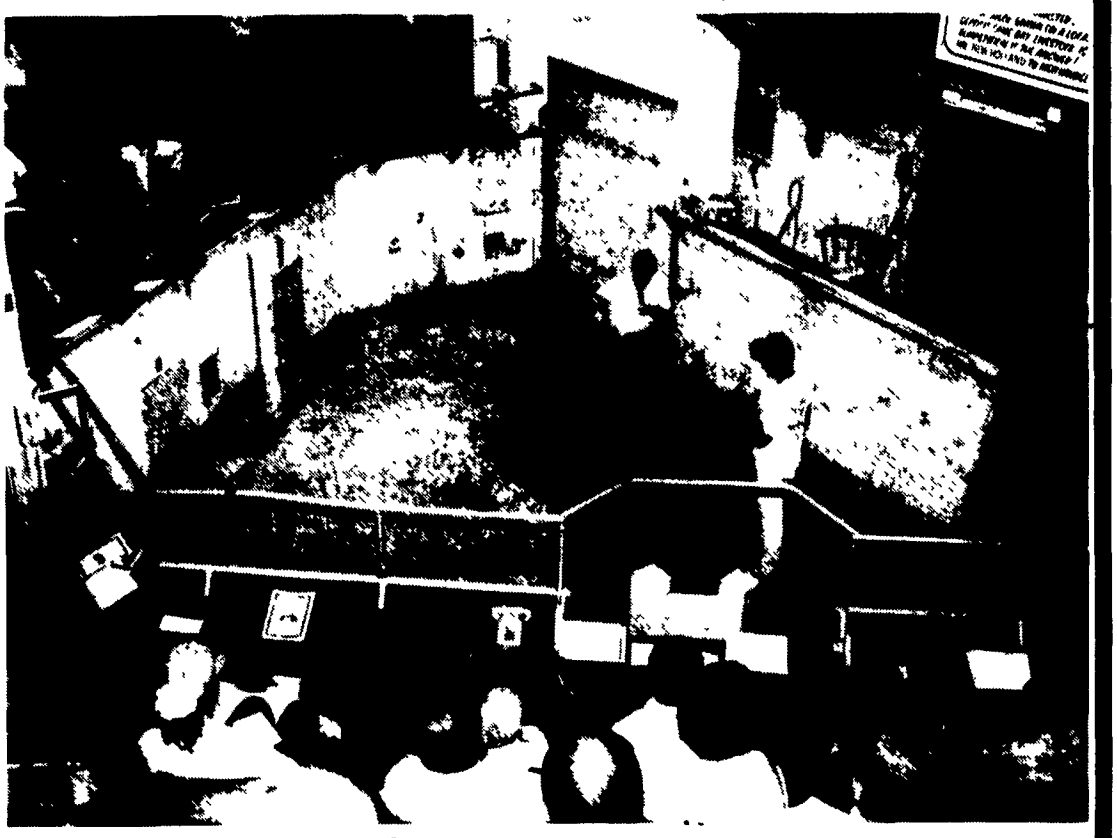
Workshop Examines Beef Evaluation Techniques



NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — More than 75 beef producers were on hand Wednesday night at the New Holland Sales Stables to examine new techniques used to obtain and evaluate quality beef. Demonstrations and overviews were presented on ultrasound scanning, injection site safety, and live cattle evaluation by several industry and academic professionals. The two-part event concluded Friday night at Stoltzfus Meats, Intercourse, with a carcass evaluation to see dress-out. Here, Penn State instructor Keith Bryan describes how to evaluate leanness, while Casey High holds the reins. Show coordinator Chet Hughes, Lancaster extension agent, said the two-day workshop is an effort to put farmers closer to consumers they feed. Photo by Andy Andrews.

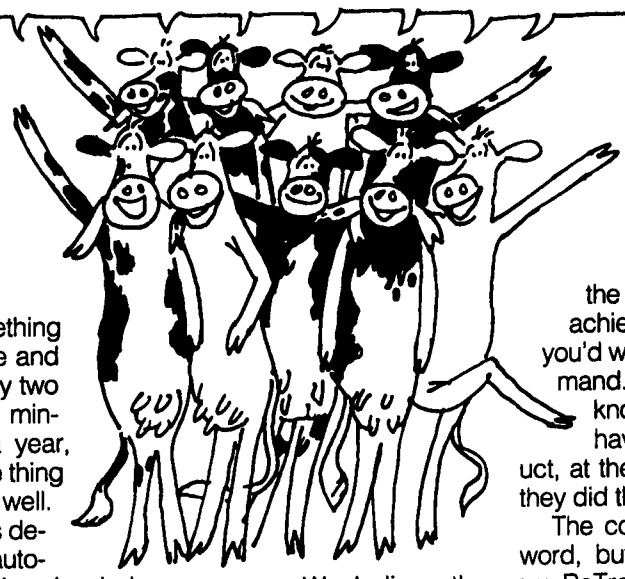
If your cows had the last word on which take-off they'd rather have, it would be...

UNIVERSAL RETRAC™



Let's face it.

If you had to have something hooked up to a very sensitive and complicated part of your body two or three times a day for five minutes at a time, 305 days a year, you'd make darn sure that the thing worked well and kept working well.

When Universal's engineers designed the new ReTrac™ automatic take-off, they had two things in mind: your cows and you. They knew if ReTrac worked safely and efficiently on your cows day after day, that was by far the most important goal to achieve. It's not only what you'd want, but what you'd demand. Universal's engineers know that to succeed you have to have a great product, at the right price. We think they did their job.

The cows may have the last word, but it's still your money. We believe the new ReTrac from Universal will make you both happy. Contact your dealer for a free demonstration.

Pork Quality Assurance Topic Of Meeting

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Information about the Pork Quality Assurance (PQA) program will be available to producers after a dinner of pork barbeque on Monday, August 30 at 12:30 p.m. at the Farm and Home Center.

The PQA program was begun in 1989 by the National Pork Producer Council (NPPC) as a way for U.S. pork producers to address their role in providing a safe, wholesome product to consumers. The PQA program emphasizes good management practices in the handling and use of animal health products and encourages producers to evaluate their herd's health program on a yearly basis.

PQA is a three-level program which includes an overview of how the producer can use quality assurance on the farm, a self-review of information in the first level, and verification upon completion of the three levels.

Program manager of the meeting is Dr. Robert Graybill, who will serve as verifier. The dinner is free and is sponsored by the Lan-Chester Pork Producers Association. For more information, contact the association's president, Ron Butt, at (215) 444-3973.

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks Co.) — Atlantic Dairy Cooperative awarded scholarships to five students to attend the 1993 National Institute on Cooperative Education (NICE), July 26-29 in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The students, sons or daughters of Atlantic members, earned the scholarships by participating in the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative's 1993 Summer Institute. The program, held June 27-30 at Shippensburg University, teaches high school students about cooperative business in a fun and educational setting.

Those receiving NICE scholarships include:

Brent England, the son of William R. and Bertha R. England of Williamsburg. Brent, 16, is a junior at Williamsburg High School, where he is a member of the National Honor Society, the Student Council, the school paper, the Barbell Club and the FFA. He also participates in basketball and football and is a student aide. He received both the Outstanding Foreign Language and Star Chapter Farmer awards. He recently attended the 1993 Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation leadership program in Pittsburgh.

Brent also is an altar server and member of the youth group at St. Joseph's Catholic Church. He is a volunteer at Garvey Manor, a retirement home.

At the Summer Institute, Brent was a member of the news team and the wake up/good night team. He was a session chairperson and a member of MINICO, a cooperative operated by the students during the four-day program.

Karen Heilinger, the daughter of Richard and Josephine Heilinger of Newmanstown. Karen, 17, is a senior at Eastern Lebanon County High School, where she is president of her FFA chapter and secretary of the county FFA organization. She is the Lebanon County Alternate Dairy Princess and a member of her 4-H dairy club.

Karen's Summer Institute activities included the chorus, the wake up/good night team and the trivia pursuit team. She also was a member of MINICO.

Jason Krall, the son of Glen and Linda Krall of Lebanon. Jason, 18, is a 1993 graduate of Cedar Crest High School, where he was a member of his FFA chapter's parliamentary procedures, livestock and meat judging teams. He also participated in intramural volleyball. He helps with the Lebanon County Livestock Club's petting zoo and worked with a group to build a community playground.

At the Summer Institute, Jason was a member of the stage crew, the wake up/good morning team and the trivia pursuit team.

Scott Nolt, is the son of Allen and Carol Nolt of Lebanon. Scott, 17, is a senior at Cedar Crest High School, where he is president of his FFA chapter. He is active in the Annville Church of the Brethren youth group, the Junior Holstein Club and the Lebanon County 4-H Livestock Club.

At the Summer Institute, Scott was a member of the stage crew and the wake up/good night team. He also participated in MINICO.

Elizabeth Walton, the daughter of David and Kathleen Walton. Elizabeth, 16, is a junior at Carlisle High School, where she is an Honor Roll student and a photographer for the Yearbook staff. She is an eight-year 4-H member, completing projects in dairy, cooking, sewing, quilting and computers. She is president of the county-wide 4-H Dairy Club, recording secretary of the 4-H County Council and is a member of the 4-H State Days food and nutrition team.

She also is a member of the Cumberland County Junior Holstein Club and was the 1992 Cumberland County Junior Dairy representative.

Elizabeth's Summer Institute activities included the stage crew and the wake up/good night team. She also was a session chairperson and a member of MINICO.

The five students will further their cooperative experience at NICE, which is sponsored annually by the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives. They will attend workshops featuring national cooperative leaders and motivational speakers.

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative represents more then 3,550 dairy farm families in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

DHIA RECORDS MAKE YOU MONEY

C.W. HEALD
PROFESSOR OF DAIRY AND ANIMAL SCIENCE

Farmers often think they receive a low hourly wage for farm work. In reality, it depends on what work is done during the hour. Changing the oil in the tractor is very important but does not pay well.

Planning and managing the farm is executive work and earns executive pay. As an example, lets assume a goal of increasing milk production 3 pounds per day in a 60 cow herd is set. That approximates 1000 pounds per lactation. Suppose a dairy farmer spent 5 hours comparing his lactation records with DHIA herds having 1000 pounds higher rolling herd average and spotted a nutritional problem. Further, finding this one weak link raises the farm's milk production 3 pounds per day. With a 60 cow herd, milk priced at $12.00 per hundred weights, and feed costs equal to one half the cost of production, the hourly wage to the DHIA record analyzer would be 1000 pounds of milk times 60 cows times $12.00/100 pounds times 1/2 for feed costs divided by 5 hours or $720. Little things such as 3 lb./day make startling large numbers when you multiply by 330 days, 60 cows and $12 milk. This return of $7200 makes the $108 monthly DHIA fee a good investment. However, it is only a good investment if the records are used. If the farm does not use the records then a paid consultant such as a veterinarian, feed dealer, DHIA technician, or someone experienced with records sould be hired so that the cost of DHIA records is an investment rather than an expense. Another approach is to select the DHIA Herd Performance Evaluator option and let the DHIA computer do the comparison work for you. Contact DHIA at 800-DHI-TEST for more information.

Another DHIA money saver involves culling decisions based on DHIA records. A replacement cow can cost $1200 to raise. A cull cow returns about $600 in salvage value. A genetically superior cow can cost $2000. Culling the wrong cow is a $2600 mistake. For example, a cow may be able to exceed herd average by several thousand pounds but because of illness was a low producer this lactation and seen as a poor risk. First, a $2000 loss is experienced by culling the low producing high genetic merit cow. The meat value of the cull is $600. The replacement cow costs $1200. So $2000 minus $600 salvage value plus $1200 for the replacement equals $2600. This may appear extreme but could happen. The $108 monthly cost of DHIA would be small in comparison to one mistake that cost twenty times this amount. DHIA PTA's would alert the farm manager that the low producer had the parentage to be in the top half of the herd.

Increasing the fat test .02% in this herd would pay $1620. Avoiding an increase in the linear score somatic cell count would pay $2400. One cow per month can take a herd over the break point for quality payment and cost $2160 in lost bonuses. Many other examples of return for dollars invested in DHIA can be cited.

You must measure it to manage it is an old saying that is still true for well managed herds. DHIA records are an easy way to get information to manage a herd and is not an expense but an investment if used wisely. Time spent using these records can pay high wages in the right hands as demonstrated above. In addition, they are used in various degrees by your veterinarian, feed dealer, county agent, breed association, AI organization, USDA, and Penn State University to make farmers more successful. Money spent on DHIA pays in many ways.

Brown Swiss Hires Two Field Reps

BELOIT, Wis. — June 7 marked the first day of employment for two new Field Representatives with the Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' Association.

Paul B. Krueger has been employed as Eastern Area representative and Rex Hendrickson as the Central Area representative.

After a one-week orientation to breed programs, services and goals at the home office in Beloit, Wisconsin, Paul and Rex have embarked on summer schedules that will take them through the majority of the states they are assigned to service.

Paul and Rex will be calling on Brown Swiss breeders and interested dairymen to promote breed programs, answer questions, and assist in locating, breeding and profiting with Brown Swiss cattle.

Krueger, a May 1993 graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Platteville, is a native of Horicon, WI. Paul has a background in registered Holstein cattle and a wide-range of experience in the dairy industry. He participated and placed well in three national dairy judging contests while at the U.W.-Platteville.

In addition, he served as president of the university's dairy club and as sale chairman for the Pioneer Dairy Club Classic Sale which boasted a $15,000 top price and a $2,000 average. Krueger spent the summer of 1992 as an intern with Select Sires Inc., working in the area of field communications.

He is to be based in the Columbus, Ohio area and service the Michigan-Indiana area, all states east and southeast. Please contact Paul at the following address if he can be of service to you: 15890 Middleburg-Plain City Rd., Plain City, OH 43064 (614) 873-3888.

Hendrickson is a May 1993 graduate of Kansas State University. Growing up on a Holstein dairy near Payola, Kansas, Rex participated in dairy judging through 4-H, FFA and Kansas State.

He has had an active career in dairy leadership through his participation in many clubs and organizations throughout his high school and university years. In addition, he worked as a summer intern in 1992 as a fieldman for Associated Milk Producers Inc., gaining valuable experience in milk marketing and customer service.

Hendrickson is to use Beloit, Wisconsin as a base for his travel from Minnesota and Wisconsin, south through Louisiana and Texas and into Colorado and the Dakotas.

For more information, contact the Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' Association, P.O. Box 1038, Beloit, WI 53512 (608) 365-4474.

New SE Program Set To Begin October 1

an orientation tour to the project, which has set October 1 as the beginning of the project's "Second Tier" program. The project will initiate a quality assurance (QA) certification program to help control SE in flocks in the Northeast.

Plans detailing the startup of the QA certification program, which was announced in May of this year (see page A27 of the May 8 issue of Lancaster Farming), will be finalized in September, according to Dr. Edgardo Arza, assistant area veterinarian and intermin head of the project.

Arza is the temporary project director following the recent resignation of Dr. David Kradel.

"Our goal is to get as many of the 300 and some odd flocks in Pennsylvania as possible on the program," said Arza. The ultimate goal is to have all of them on the program, he said.

Actual details of how the program will be implemented are still being outlined. But the foundation of the program, according to the interim director, is to "establish certain basic things producers should do to assure the quality is the safest possible, rather than targeting where SE is and trying to do something about it.

"It's more a standard across-the-board risk reduction program," he said. "It is based more on fundamental principles that will reduce the risk of producing an egg that has SE in it."

The program will use certain monitoring tools to allow the project to assure the quality of the program. There will be professional certification, much like in other industry quality assurance programs.

For more information about the project, contact Arza at the USDA SE Pilot Project, 1352 Harrisburg Pike, Lancaster, PA 17601, (717) 399-8810.

MILK. IT DOES A BODY GOOD.™

AVOID RUSH HOUR TRAFFIC
REDUCE EGG ACCIDENTS

How often do your feeders run in a day? It is generally necessary to operate drag auger feeders as many as eight or more times per day because of limited feeding space and the small quantity of feed presented at one time. That creates tremendous competition for the little feed available. The result of this competition is damaged eggs... from feet, toes and collisions. Big Dutchman chain feeders can feed your flock by running as few as three or four times a day, with little competition for feed, a calmer flock and fewer cracks and checks.

Farm Forum

should be fighting for. Forget the Bottle Bill, it is high property taxes that are eating us alive.

Everyone seems to have the idea that farmers just sit on the front porch and watch for a developer to come along.

If we are going to look at farms as future development, then every property should be taxed as the possible location of a super highway, shopping center, high rise apartments — or even a gas station.

Why should a farmer have to mortgage his farm to the County to have his farm assessed as a farm? This is what Act 319 amounts to. No other property is assessed as to what may happen 20-30 years from Now.

If you sign up for Act 319 it is forever.

Who knows what unforseen event might make it necessary to sell. Should this happen, the Federal Government will take 28-percent, the State will take about 3-percent, realtors and lawyers 15-20-percent, then you will have Act 319 which will take- selling price x millage x 7 years plus 6-percent interest.

The only pension a farmer has is what he can get for his farm. If he is forced to join Act 319 in order to afford to stay on his farm, then he is really being held hostage, and will have to pay the ransom to the county if he should have to sell.

We don't have to look to Washington to see lack of leadership, it is right here in Harrisburg and in our Farm Organizations.

Farm-City Day Success For Butters

the hour-long tour, with each wagon holding between 20 and 30 people.

Demonstrations and contests throughout the complex informed and entertained from 10:30 a.m. to after 3 p.m. The last wagon tour returned at 4:30 p.m. Yet with all the people there, the grounds were remarkably clean. Elders said, "People were considerate and used the trash barrels. We couldn't continue to hold these Farm-City events if it created a lot of litter."

Among the volunteers who helped with Farm-City Day 1993 were the Morris Fire Department and Emergency Medical Technicians, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Eastern Milk Producers Co-op, Dairylea Cooperative, Inc., Middlebury Cooperative, Inc., B & L Portable Toilets, plus literally hundreds of individuals, as well as other businesses and organizations.

The purpose of Farm-City Day, of course, is to bring city folks out to the farm and show them, first hand, how a farmer makes his living. For the Demtshuk family of Philadelphia, the event met its goal.

Cousins Matt Baker, 12, left, and Chad Cassher, 10, both of Wellsboro, kept their cool by playing with kittens in the shade of a machinery shed during Farm-City Day 1993.

The Demtshuk family from Philadelphia enjoyed their first Farm-City Day visit. Pictured with parents Margie and Pete are their children Nick, Angel, and Julia.

This determined lad strains his leg muscles against the weight on the sled behind him in the pedal tractor pull.

"We had never been on a farm before," said Margie Demtshuk, who along with her husband and children enjoyed the day. "We have a weekend home near Hills Creek Lake and we were up for vacation. When we drove by the signs for Farm-City Day we decided to see it."

Their reaction? "We loved it! The tractor tour was our favorite. We especially liked how the wagons stopped and people explained how things worked."

The Demtshuks were also impressed with the farm's size. "For a working farm, I was surprised to see it so nice and clean," said Margie.

Her husband Pete agreed. "Everything is so organized. I'm amazed at the automation they have on this farm," he said, referring to how the cows were fed via a computer reading a chip on their collars. "I guess they need it with an operation this big."

Noting how his appreciation for the farmer has grown, Pete said, "People go to the supermarket every day and don't realize how much work goes into producing the foods they buy. Everyone from the city should tour a farm like this."

While the weather, volunteers, and the crowds helped make Farm-City Day 1993 a success, families like the Demtshuks made it all worthwhile. Elders said, "It was a perfect day."

Dairy Cattle Show Season Starts

S.E. Region FFA, Lancaster 4-H Shows Advance Competition

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — All across the state the dairy cattle showing season has kicked off, and for many participants the regional youth dairy shows are the first part of the annual show progression.

A number of shows were held this week, including the Southeastern Regional FFA Dairy Show at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds, Lebanon, and the Lancaster County 4-H Dairy Show at the Solanco Fairgrounds in Quarryville.

Animals are judged according to the Danish System, which rewards animals exhibiting enough show quality not only among the other animals exhibited, but also against the model animal of that breed.

In other words, while judges place first, second and third place animals, etc., they also issue ribbons of blue, red, and white, in descending order.

Animals awarded blue ribbons qualify for the next level of competition, while animals receiving the other colored ribbons do not. The judge does not have to qualify any animal for further competition, even if the animal is judged grand champion at a particular event.

At the same time, the youth are judged themselves, on showing ability and the grooming or "fitting" of their animal.

Special recognition is also made of animals bred and owned by the same exhibitor, as recognition of the exhibitor's ability to breed quality animals.

On Tuesday, a special award was made at the Southeastern Regional FFA Dairy Show by sponsor Sire Power — the owner of the grand champion bred and owned of all the colored breed animals, and the owner of the grand champion bred and owned Holstein were presented with one free AI service.

Others who helped support the show included the Brown Swiss Breed Association, exhibitor awards and trophies; Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, financial support; Pen Hostetter, Annville, for milking equipment; Lebanon County Farmwomen No. 20 for food service; Lebanon Area Fair Association, for use of the facilities; and Harry Bachman for the sound equipment.

Numbers of animals shown was down slightly from past years, but the quality was not diminished. There were 34 blue ribbon animals shown, and 14 youth received blue ribbons for showmanship competitions, while 16 earned blue ribbons for fitting animals.

The grand champion Holstein was 4-year-old C Bellstar Elevator Sarah, owned by Troy Getz, of Richland, and bred by Klaas Koenes, of Ontario, Canada.

Kathy Jo Mase, of Lebanon owned and bred the reserve grand champion Holstein, a senior 3-year-old Ken-Ire Isaac Corrin, thereby winning the best animal bred and owned competition.

The junior champion Holstein, Miss Stonehurst Liz, a senior yearling daughter of sire Glen Drummond Delegate, was shown by Scott Nolt, of Lebanon. The reserve junior champion was Ken-Ire Jay Evening, out of Ken-Ire Dixie Jay, bred and owned by Michelle Mase, of Lebanon.

While most lenders have barely scratched the surface in agriculture, we've gone a bit further.

Fact is, you can explain your needs to some bankers until you're blue in the face and chances are they still won't understand. Farm Credit loan officers, on the other hand, have been through the most comprehensive ag lending training program in the nation. And many have farm backgrounds themselves.

They can approve loans for just about any farm need from land to equipment. And since a committee isn't necessary for most decisions, loan approval is easy and fast.

Stop by and talk with your Farm Credit loan officer.

Precast Piglet Crushing

with the

MODEL 90 FARROWING CRATE

IN STOCK!

Constructed from heavy gauge materials, this crate is designed to reduce crushing with sow comfort in mind. The bowed bottom bars make for a comfortable 33" crate width when the sow lays down, yet the adjustable anti-crush bars eliminate the sow from carelessly dropping on the piglets. This movement restriction does not hamper the sow as lays down, or wants to stand up, as the bars slide up and out of her way.

GALVANIZED!

Contracts available for hogs, finishing and sow units. For more information call 1-800-673-2580.

Grace Plans To Divest ABS

DeFOREST, Wis. — ABS of DeForest, Wisconsin, announces the recent formal decision by its parent company, W.R. Grace of Boca Raton, Florida, to divest ABS.

Last week, W.R. Grace announced to ABS officials its intention to publicly designate ABS, along with certain other businesses, as a "discontinued unit," and begin the official process of divestment.

This divestment decision does not reflect on the ABS business or the performance of its employees. Rather, it is a decision to focus Grace on its core business areas. During an exchange of views which took place in the course of the recent ABS Strategic Business Plan presentation to Grace management, Grace expressed its belief in the ABS business, the actions taken to strengthen ABS, and supported the objectives and strategies set forth in the ABS Strategic Plan.

"I view this decision as a very positive development," said Jack Shelton, ABS president. "Both Grace and ABS are committed to making this a smooth transition that is not only in the best interest of Grace, but also enables us, the ABS global team, to continue the process of strategically developing a multi-cultural genetics organization that responds and reacts to the changing needs of our diverse customers. The process will be carefully managed in a fashion non-disruptive to the ABS business plan or to the products and services offered to ABS customers around the world.

ABS management will work with Grace management in the actual divestment activities. At this time, no legitimate offers on ABS are pending, and a few weeks will be necessary to prepare data for Grace to initiate the divestment process.

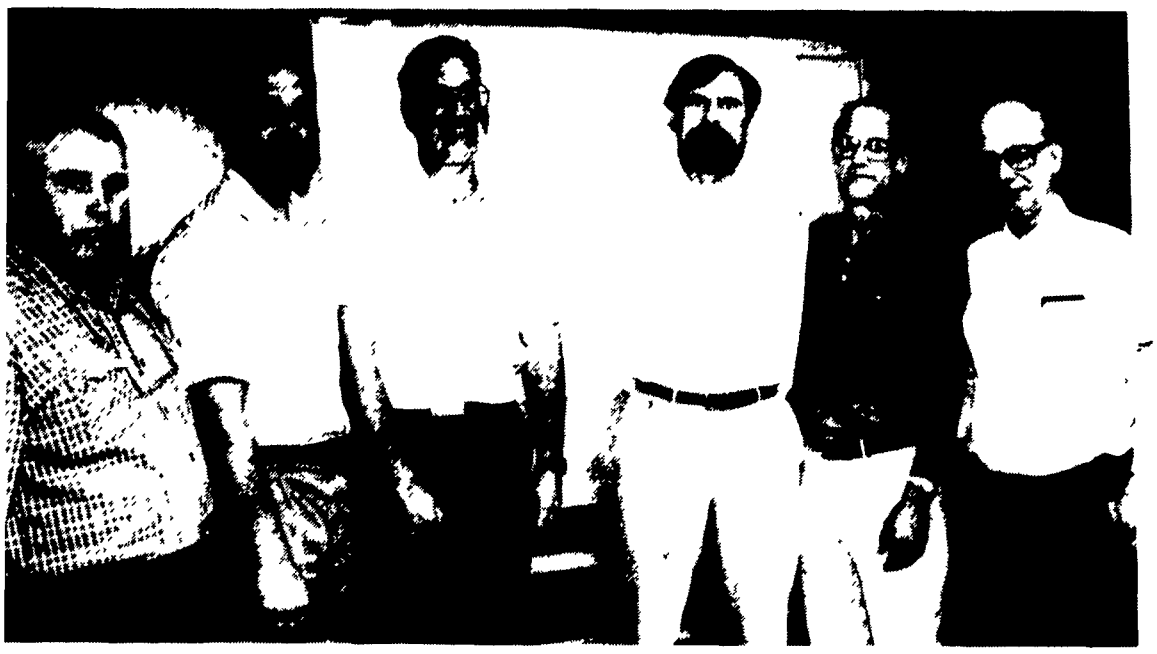
'Odor Crisis' Propels Team Overseas To Look At Digesters



A six-member exchange team will travel to China to study ways to get rid of the methane odor generated from manure and to supply inexpensive power for those who may want to use the technology on their farms. Standing in front of a map of China from left are Harlan Keener, swine farmer; James Kauffman, poultry farmer; Gerald Heistand, Lancaster Conservation District assistant administrator; Dr. Richard Fite, USDA, team leader; Virgil Gutshall, vo-ag instructor and swine farmer; and Dr. Robert Graves, Penn State professor of ag engineering.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — On Wednesday, a six-member exchange team will travel to China to study ways to get rid of the methane odor generated from manure and to supply inexpensive power for those who may want to use the technology on their farms.

The group, which includes two Lancaster County farmers, a conservation district representative, an ag teacher (also a farmer), a USDA official, and an ag engineer, will board a plane on July 28 for a three-week trip to China.

The exchange is being engineered through the USDA Office of International Cooperation and Development with grants from several ag industry and other organizations, including the Center for Rural Pennsylvania, a legislative agency of the Pennsylvania General Assembly.

The purpose of the tour is to provide information exchange between the ag industries of the two countries. Primarily, the visitors from the U.S. will want to know exactly how the smaller farms of China — many with less than 50 hogs, or 10-20 head of dairy cattle — make use of the more than reportedly one million methane digesters in the country.

"Back in the '70s, when I got started in digester work when I was in a similar position in Wisconsin, it was the Energy Crisis," said Dr. Robert E. Graves, a professor of ag engineering at Penn State, at a meeting of the group at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center last week. "Well, now I guess you'd say it's the Odor Crisis."

The Odor Crisis, caused by complaints from residential areas located near farms that have manure storage facilities, has been pushing the Soil Conservation Service and other agencies to find a way to control the odor problem. Methane digesters collect the methane generated by manure and use the gas to drive generators or to provide heat.

Penn State researchers and agencies have been working for more than a decade to find some way to deal with the odor problem. Farmers that have manure containment facilities, such as storage tanks, are seeking to cover the facility — but the gas remains. Many are seeking ways to deal with the potential problems of methane gas, to either contain it and burn it off or to use a an anaerobic digester and convert it to electrical or heat energy.

Graves, part of the exchange group, said, "I feel woefully inadequate about good, reasonably positive, surefire methods of controlling odor from stored manure." The digesters, he said, can "get a good handle on odor."

Members of the group include:

• Dr. Richard W. Fite, veterinary medical officer, USDA. Fite is the team leader.

Moldavia Ag, Other Topics At Dairy Meeting

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — A new milking parlor, a high producing herd, and a preview of agriculture in the former Soviet state of Moldavia were topics for discussion at the dairy twilight meeting sponsored by the Adams County Holstein Club on Thursday, July 15.

Hosted by the Donlemar Farm of Leroy, Nona, and Mark Deputy in East Berlin, the meeting was presided over by Marvin Brown, president.

The Deputy family cares for a milking herd of 112 Holsteins, which in 1992 produced an average of 22,265 pounds of milk, 842 pounds of fat, and 702 pounds of protein to rank second among herds on DHIA testing in the county.

The herd is milked through a double eight, rapid exit, parallel parlor which operates hydraulically and features automatic take-off milkers and indexing stalls.

Describing her experiences with the Friendship Force, an international exchange program started by former President Jimmy Carter, Sally Brown Bair of Lancaster told of conditions in the former Soviet republic of Moldavia. A small country about the size of Colorado, Moldavia is located between Romania and the Ukraine at about the same latitude as Pennsylvania.

Agriculture accounts for 40 percent of the country's gross national product and provides jobs to 40 percent of the workforce. Most of the employment remains on large collective farms. "After seventy years of communism, the people find it difficult to think for themselves — a very real problem in the transition to privatization," said Bair. She listed the problems confronting agriculture as "too many employees, very expensive fuel, a lack of cold storage, and drought.

"Unpaved streets and outdoor toilets are common in the villages of Moldavia," said Bair. Families typically reside in one or two bedroom apartments and spend some time daily at food shopping, often standing in line to buy eggs when they are available. While the natives view America as the land of opportunity, Sally Bair feels it may take generations before they overcome the effects of oppressive communism.

Adams County Dairy Princess Lisha Mummert of East Berlin reported that she has completed training for her role in milk promotion the week of July 6 at Lycoming College. She shared the excitement of serving ice cream to 10,000 people in Philadelphia on June 23 in the "Every Day is Sundae" promotion. Lisha is available to speak to local consumer groups on the nutritional benefits of dairy products.

County Agent Thomas E. Piper urged the dairy farm families to support the promotional effort

'Odor Crisis' Propels

• Harlan Keener, Lancaster County swine producer and owner of . working digester. Keener operates a 1,000-sow farrow-to-finish operation. Several years ago, he constructed a digester. He said there hasn't been much interest in digesters from the industry. "The big boys don't want to touch it, they say it's not practical, because there's no money in it for them." But for hog operations, it's a practical way to get rid of odors and provide supplemental power for farm operations, saving farmers money.

• James Kauffman, Lancaster County poultry farmer, who manages about 75,000 pullets and is looking for ways to more effectively manage manure. He is also looking for ways to obtain inexpensive power to contribute to his farming operation.

• Virgil Gutshall, Perry County vo-ag teacher. Gutshall also operates a 330-sow farrow-to-finish operation and is looking for ways not only to handle manure odors, but to use the information to set up informational exhibits at school and as a special Farm Show display.

• Dr. Robert E. Graves, professor of ag and bioengineering, Penn State. Graves said one of the unique elements of the effort "is the fact that we have farmers going over," he said, who can use the experience to obtain a model for their farms.

• Gerald M. Heistand, assistant administrator, Lancaster Conservation District. Heistand said the group will examine ways that small to medium-sized farms may be able to use the information obtained to set up their own digesters. "We're seeing if we can't bring that technology back here and fit it into a particular niche in the United States, particularly with the small farms here in southeastern Pennsylvania."

Heistand said several areas in China do not have rural electricity and depend heavily on the digesters to obtain power.

"I think what we're looking at here is a question of self-sufficiency," he said. "I think those farmers that enjoy being self-sufficient will really tap into this project."

The group, when they come back, has a timetable to set up a "package" of information that will be released, through the Center for Rural Pennsylvania, to the public, according to Heistand. The times of release are still being worked out, according to Lawrence J. Lentz, program manager of the center.

The actual itinerary for the trip is being set up at this time by the host country, according to Dr. Richard Fite, group leader. The group will leave China and head back to the U.S. on August 20.

But when the group returns, they will be putting together the information they obtained for use by farmers here.

"People are looking to this area for advice and for progress as to what's happening," said Heistand.

Farming Celebrated In Chester County

UPPER OXFORD TOWNSHIP (Chester Co.) — Chester County's new public-private farmland preservation partnership brought its message of support directly to the farmers on Sunday, July 18, at Upper Oxford Township's community park. Hosting a picnic barbecue in honor of the county's 57 registered Century Farmers, representatives from the Agricultural Development Council, the Agricultural Land Preservation Board, the Brandywine Conservancy and Penn State's Cooperative Extension let the western Chester County farmers know that they intend to use their combined knowledge and energy in helping to provide another hundred years and more of active, productive farming in the county.

This was a day to "celebrate farming." In a society where some families move every three or four years, there is an incredible sense of continuity and stability in recognizing the presence of the same family on the same land for over a hundred years. Eighteen Century Farm families attended the barbecue and were easily identified by the blue and gold ribbons attached to their nametags. They included the H. Wheeler Amans who are nearly two-century farmers (1794-Kimberton); Mrs. Eusebius Baily and her son's family (West Chester); David Clevenstine (Phoenixville); three generations of Alfred Dallett's family (Cheyney); Donald and Shirley Elliott, a two-century farming family (1769); and their neighbors, Vernon and LaRue Guest (Pottstown); the William Handys (1743-Coatesville); John Kirk (Nottingham); Lukens Hutchison (West Grove); veterinarian Carol Landefeld and her husband Robert Witt (Kennett Square); the David Lights (Cochranville); 4 generations of a two-century farm, Rebecca Krueger, the Frederick McMichaels and their son's family (1777-Honeybrook); another two-century family, Landis and Barbara Reid (1793-Parkesburg); Mrs. Sylvester Scott and Benton and Mary Woodward (Coatesville): and Mrs. Helen Young and her family (Coatesville).

A shady grove and a picnic pavilion draped in red, white and blue bunting set the stage for displays that illustrated progress in farmland preservation and the types of advice and support the partners can offer the farming community. Take-home packets of information were available, and staff members spent the afternoon getting to know the farmers. A chance to sign up for information from Chester County's Task Force on Tax Reform resulted in a basket full of requests. The Conservancy gave away posters of James Wyeth's painting "Hay Bales," and country music was supplied by Chris Ferrier and his Cacklin' Hens & Roosters Too.

The newly signed cooperative agreement was good cause for celebration. The innovative partnership prepares the way to combine the county's ability to purchase development rights from farmers with the Brandywine Conservancy's expertise in helping landowners plan for the future of their property and the Cooperative Extension's work with financial planning. As Ray Pickering, director of the Agricultural Land Preservation Board, stressed, "Rather than competing for the scarce hours in a farmer's day, the partnership will work together in bringing information to the farmers."

The other hosts included Joyce Hershey for the ADC, Colin Johnstone who spoke for both the ALPB and the absent chairman of the County Commissioners, Karen Martynick, who was in Chicago accepting an award for Chester County's farmland preservation program, Bill Sellers of the Brandywine Conservancy whose recent environmental trip to Hungary dramatically increased his appreciation of the productivity of Chester County's soils, rainfall and farmers, and Laurie Sickow-Sandow from the Penn State Cooperative Extension.

Farmers have serious personal concerns about estate planning and inheritance taxes which they can plan for to some degree. However, there are also many challenges that are totally beyond their control. For instance, development pressures in other sections of the county have a domino effect on this area of seemingly endless corn and grain fields. As people flee higher cost housing and taxes in central and northern Chester County, their arrival in the western townships and school districts places a greater financial burden on the farmers. One farmer at the picnic thought he had his 1993 school tax payment pretty well taken care of - until the bill arrived. His land straddles 2 school districts; the bill is $4,000 higher than last year. According to Century Farmers David and Annabelle Light, they were recently faced with the choice of selling 64 acres of their farm or going broke.

The Century Farm picnic's special guests were enthusiastic in their support for the new effort. They included home district State Representative Arthur Hershey, a farmer himself, who is working hard to establish a new 4-H center in the county; Congressman Robert Walker who is working toward relief from inheritance taxes for farm families that keep on farming; State Senator Earl Baker, just home from a trip to China and renewed awareness of both our democratic traditions and rich agricultural resources; County Commissioners Joe Kenna and Andy Dinniman; former State Representative Sam Morris who still speaks for the farmer as a member of the State Agricultural Land Preservation Board; Chester County Historical Society's Bob Thompson; Leroy Bruce, Farm Manager for the University of Pennsylvania's New Bolton Center and also Barclay Hoopes, president of the Chester-Delaware Farm Association.

department, he is also looking at the relationship of the gene to mastitis. Patton says that classifying this gene might provide a basis for selection for resistance to mastitis.

Patton is an Evan Pugh Research Professor Emeritus of Agriculture at Penn State. He served the College of Agricultural Sciences for 31 years prior to his retirement in 1980, first as professor of dairy science and later as professor of food science.

Patton said he remembers when Lamartine Hood, dean of the College, was a graduate student in the Department of Dairy Science in the 1960s. Under Patton's supervision, Hood designed and set up the University's first electron microscopy laboratory. Currently housed in the College of Science, present-day versions of that equipment continue to serve the University.

Patton said retirement is wonderful — "You are free to concentrate more on what you want to do than on what you have to do."

But he said he is one of the lucky people who has always loved his work and that he is very grateful to his friends at Penn State who grant him some space at the laboratory bench.

Central Region Fashion Revue Winners Ready For State

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

ALTOONA (Blair Co.) — Dashing from air-conditioned vehicles, which dropped them just feet from the cool corridors of the Ramada Inn, 89 participants from 11 counties began their day of 4-H Fashion Revue Central-Region competition.

They comprised a senior division of 38 members and a junior one of 51 members, according to Marie Kieffer, Somerset Co. extension director, who was chairperson for the event.

When the grand finale fashion show was over the winners' names were announced. They are Debbie Black, Jenn Black, Valeria Ciampa, Valerie Castro, Jill Clites, Emily Haagen, Jesse Koegler, Lisa Lieb, Judy Mains, Jenna Svonavec, Amanda Thomas, Erica Walker and Melissa Williamson. Amber Armogost, first alternate, will attend state competition because one winner is unable to attend.

The second alternate is Sara Weiland, third is Julie McMillin. Semi-finalists were Jennifer Affeldt, Sara Hilegass, Emily Koegler and Jenny Speck.

Counties represented by the winners are Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Centre, Huntingdon, Perry and Somerset.

Names in the junior honors group are Jenny Brockett, Lynette Chamberlain, Heather Christiana, Amanda Darr, Sarah Flannery, Heather Gray, Tammy Grissinger, Terri Grissinger, Jared Gordon, Carla Harpster, Julie Hoffman, Aleecha Jones, Tracey Lieb, Samantha Maust, Jeanette Peacock, Christina Sanner, Heidi Shryock, Diane Stouffer, Erin Stroudnour, Vicki Swinnerton, Kristin Wagner, Clarissa Yablinsky, Amy Zuraski and Laura Zuraski.

Counties represented by the junior honors group are Bedford, Cambria, Elk, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Mifflin and Somerset.

Judith Mains, 17, Duncannon, Perry Co., was introduced as the National Fashion Revue state representative. Mains was selected from the blue form evaluation.

"I've lived 4-H actually," she said. "You tell how 4-H has affected your life and how your are giving back to 4-H," she said about filling out the in-depth, blue form.

Mains modeled a 100-percent wool, lined, tailored jacket over a gored, black shirt of sport suede and a forest green blouse. "This is the first time I've tailored," she said. "This outfit was made with a lot of tears."

As variable as the participants themselves, so were the garments they had constructed, adding their stamp of individuality though the accessory such as a perky hat.

Some formal wear was constructed by the participants with years of experience. These stylish creations were elegant or fit for a grand ball.

There were trouser suits, dresses, and playwear proudly paraded by their owners once the tensions of judging were past.

Sixteen judges spent the day examining garments for construction, which counted 30 points; appearance and presentation, 25 points; and fashion, design and fit, each valued at 15 points. Judges were professional home economists and 4-H leaders.

Participants also went to two workshops. One dealt with how to accessorize, through a video presentation, while the other dealt with clothing and textiles.

The textiles workshop allowed the kids to test their knowledge in a fun way by working as teams to answer the questions stationed at each exhibit. Various kinds of scissors and shears displayed were intended to provoke a good decision about when to use each and for what purpose.

How to point-press a collar during garment construction was another question to consider. They viewed the available tools such as a seam roller and a pressing ham, among other choices, and listed them from the best to the worst choices.

They also examined five teeshirts in separate colors, weights, and "care" instructions. After selecting a favorite shirt, they had to think about the basis of their decision.

Nancy Covert, a 20-yr. extension veteran from Jefferson Co. said, "The whole goal is teaching

Southeast Regional Fashion Revue Winners Off To State

CONNIE LEINBACH
Berks Co. Correspondent

READING (Berks Co.) — Myranda Caputo found herself the center of attention recently when she was chosen as one of nine 4-H Fashion Revue senior competitors to go on to the state competition.

Caputo's ensemble was a stunning blue and black dress made entirely of ribbons she had woven together.

Caputo, 17, of Easton, was the last contestant among 61 juniors and seniors during the Southeast Regional 4-H Fashion Revue held at the Inn at Reading. There was an audible twitter through the crowd as the announcer noted the facts about Caputo's dress and jacket ensemble.

After the awards presentation, Caputo explained to a crowd of admirers that she designed the dress after one she had seen in a fashion magazine. Since she could not find material to match her envision dress, she decided to create the material by using about 100 yards of black and blue ribbon.

Using Stitch Witchery, she adhered the ribbon to another piece of fabric, then sewed all the rows. She then cut out her pattern, a simple, sleeveless dress with a bolero jacket, and sewed it.

For a little splash, she sewed blue sequins on some of the squares of the jacket and a cording of sequins around the top of the dress.

In all, she figured she spent about 46 hours on the dress — a one-of-a-kind affair of blue and black checks — which was a hit at Caputo's recent prom.

"It's really fantastic," noted Fay Strickler, the home economist extension agent for Berks County, as she admired the workmanship. "It takes someone extremely skilled to do this. Every year she comes up with something different."

Strickler also noted that the color combination is unusual. Though the blue of the ribbons is bright, it is toned down by the black. As the dress catches the light, different shading effects appear.

"This dress is one of the top quality pieces," Strickler added. "Its very unique."

Other professionals have also praised the dress, Caputo noted. At a show given by the Lehigh Valley Couturier Society, of which Caputo is the youngest member, the dressmakers there estimated a dress like Caputo's would cost about $950 in a retail store.

Caputo, who said she loves sewing, is scheduled to study fashion merchandising when she enters Mansfield University in the fall. From there she hopes to transfer to the Philadelphia College of Textiles. Her dream is to eventually open her own bridal shop.

"I love sewing," she said. "It's my life."

Caputo praised her 4-H leader, Bonnie Murray, with whom she has sewed for six years, for her coaching and support. Murray never doubted that Caputo could do the dress.

"Whatever she said she could do, I knew she could do it," Murray said without hesitation.

The last time Caputo attended the state championship, she wore a suit she constructed of ultra suede.

Lila Newhard, the 4-H leader for the Leesport 4-H club, was happy that four of her members participated in the revue, three of whom are boys.

"These boys are a real challenge," Newhard noted about the pants and caps they make.

Senior winners are, from left, Carleste Hughes of Northampton County, Myranda Caputo of Lehigh County, Dana Rothermel of Berks County, Lisa Geschwindt of Berks County, Kristen Schickling of Montgomery County, Melissa Jackson of Schuylkill County, Amy Lichtenwalner of Lehigh County, Jody Hewitt of Chester County, and Leah Algier of Chester County.

Wilkes-Barre Day Draws Crowd

WILKES-BARRE (Luzerne Co.) — More than 2,000 people visited Wilkes-Barre's public square to celebrate Wilkes-Barre Dairy Day on June 22.

Although the milk samples being distributed were so popular they ran out before the event's conclusion, the main attraction was Theresa, a holstein cow provided by Frank Conyngham of Shavertown.

Besides being very popular with several pre-school children excited to see a "live" cow, Theresa was in the spotlight during the celebrity milking contest.

During the competition, two teams of three competed to see which team could milk the fastest. Milkers included: Bernard Mengeringhausen, Wilkes-Barre City Council chair; Owen Costello, executive director of the Keystone State Games; Christine Jenson, assistant city administrator; Jean Clocker, head of the Wilkes-Barre Farmers' Market; and Pete McRae and Leo Benedetti of Q-102 FM in Pittston.

The team consisting of Mengerinhausen, Clocker, and Benedetti was the winner.

The event, held in honor of National Dairy Month, was sponsored by Pennsylvania's Dairy Farmers, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, and the American Dairy Association.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

When it comes to being cheerful-looking, few things can beat the sunflower.

Over the years, plant breeders have developed mammoth sunflowers that stretch eight feet tall, grow heads a foot across, and — in our garden, anyway — act like radar beams for every finch in the neighborhood.

Hybridists have also bred sunflowers in the more-decorative direction, which develop a much more bushy style of lots of smaller, cutting-type flowers. We'll list that as a possible experiment on next year's list already started of "garden - '94."

Then there are sunflowers that just do their own thing. Thanks to the messy eating habits of our birdfeeder regulars, volunteer sunflower plants pop up in all sorts of interesting spots around the farm — the garden, the flower beds, the road bank, the middle of the dirt lane to the meadow.

This year's Sunflower Volunteer of the Year award goes to a determined little seed that somehow wedged itself into a tiny crack between the concrete-block outside wall of the dairy barn and the asphalt pavement that runs against the edge of the wall at the front entrance. How it ever got there is a mystery, though some bird may have poked it in the crack for storage.

Not only did it germinate there, this feisty plant has grown a slender stem about 18 inches tall, which does a sort of curve out toward the sunlight from the shade of the barn wall. And then it opened a three-inch flower head with a row of single, brilliant yellow petals around the outside of the small seed-producing center.

It just looks like a bright-yellow Smiley Face growing outside the dairy barn. I may take to watering it because its cheerful sunniness in such an unlikely spot is such an "upper."

Ten feet or so away, in the flower border, a small army of plant volunteers were commandeered several weeks ago and marched into a row along the border way on the opposite side of the lawn. Though I haven't started calendula seed for several years, bright yellow and orange descendants of the originals reseed each season.

This year's crop of calendula volunteers was a bumper one; I transplanted nearly 80 seedlings to edge the rose bed. A soaking rain for a few days set'em off on a growth spurt and nearly every seedling "took." Though there was no way to tell which were yellow and which were orange, random planting spaced the colors fairly well. Now full, bushy and covered with continuous blooms, the bright "accidental" border is as colorful than any I've ever purposely planned.

Sometimes even the planned plantings turn into surprises.

Though I've not grown lima beans for about 10 years, it seemed a good way to utilize a spare, empty row left when most of the vegetable garden had been planted. Stopping by a local garden center, I picked up a pack of the only variety of lima bean seed had on hand. Fordhood 242 sounded like a winner when I looked it up in the Burpee catalog, a heavy yielder, bush lima.

"Are these what I think they are?" I asked The Farmer recently, pointing out the lima beans, unexpected growth pattern. His conclusion agreed with mine about the long, vining tendrils these bean plants were sending out.

Pole lima beans were not on the planned garden agenda. Then I remembered the metal fence stakes and recycled plastic net wrap from hay bales that our son had erected in the garden last year for the climbing Sugar Snap peas. Those posts were stored only a few feet from the garden, and two lengths of net wrap which had discouraged the robins from stealing all our strawberries were currently unused. With The Farmer's help to pound in the stakes, the pole lima trellis was in place in just a few minutes.

If you planted pole limas that aren't, guess where your seed got to....

and sharpening decision-making, and testing their knowledge of equipment and notions." She said, "The most important knowledge is how to purchase things," adding "what it is made from determines how you will take care of it."

Jesse Koegler, 14, from Centre Hall, Centre Co., was the only male winner with his flannel-lined, oversized, drawstring jacket. Made from dockcloth and corduroy, with big patch pockets, the jacket was of level 7 construction.

Koegler said that last year he couldn't go to states because he was a junior. He very much wanted a chance to go to the state fashion revue. Koegler says he plans to become a corporate lawyer one day.

Besides Kieffer and Covert, other extension agents working to make the central 4-H Fashion Revue a success were Janice Stoud-nour, Bedford, Co.; Doris Krumenacker, Blair Co., the registration chairman; Melissa Zimmerman, extension summer assistant in Elk Co.; Beth Van Horn, Centre Co., assistant to the regional director and chairman of the judging committee, and Sandy Hall, Centre Co.; Norma Lash, Fulton Co.; Debra Gregory, Huntingdon Co.; Jane Beightol, Mifflin Co., tally chairman and Jane Mecum, Perry Co.

Standing on the dais at the Altoona Ramada Inn's large meeting room is the group of junior winners in the central-region 4-H Fashion Revue. Eleven counties of the 17, had 4-H'ers participating.

Protect Your Household Textiles From Insect Damage

Moths are not the only insects that can damage your clothing and household textiles. Beetles, roaches, silverfish, and other insects may also damage textiles by feeding directly on the fibers. When insects feed on spilled foods and beverages or perspiration, they cause indirect damage. The type of fabric or food substance that insects are attracted to determines which of two groups the insects fall into. Insects that feed directly on the fabric include webbing clothes months, casemaking clothes moths, black carpet and furniture beetles, and sometimes termites. These insects also damage blended fibers such as wool/polyester — dispelling the notion that the use of synthetic fibers protects the fabrics from damage.

Crickets, beetles, roaches and silverfish are also attracted by food, perspiration, beverages spills, and starch. These insects cause indirect damage. Precautions must be taken when storing textile fabrics to prevent insect damage. Staining, expecially food and beverage residue, should be removed from clothing and household textiles before they are stored. Most forms of moth larvae are destroyed by dry-cleaning solvents, but once the solvent evaporates, moth larvae can again attack the fabrics.

Prevention of insect damage should include cleaning of textiles, storing only clean items and using mothballs, and cedar chests. Cleaning discourages insects from using your textiles as their home. Storing clean textiles will deter the infestation of insects. The odor of mothballs may repel larvae and insects if the area of use is enclosed, thus ensuing a high concentration of odor. The cedar scent of cedar chests repels insects, but it is the airtightness of the chest that protects the clean stored textiles from insect damage.

Moth repellent is a treatment available from some drycleaners. This treatment provides protection from insects without the objectionable odor of mothdalls.

Have you seen a label indicating "Sport Clean Only?" Unfortunately many people have, and they have wondered exactly what it means. The International Fabricare Institute did some investigating to learn what they could and discovered that manufacturers, whose garments had these labels, told the International Fabricare Institute that the labels should have read "Spot Clean Only."

This label states that the garment can be spotted for stain removal, but does not give instructions for dry-cleaning or washing. Spot cleaning procedures will not clean a garment as would dry-cleaning. But, if a garment with this label is processed by any other means other that what is on the label, and damage occurs, there is no recourse with the retailer or manufacturer. Unfortunately, labels indicating Spot Clean Only are in compliance with the Care Label Rule, but the effectiveness of the cleaning that is obtained by this process is certainly very limited.

My advice is to always read the care labels on all textiles carefully before deciding whether or not to buy the item.

PEACHY STRAWBERRY YOGURT SHORTCAKE

Shortcake:
1½ cups buttermilk baking mix
¼ cup sugar
3 tablespoons butter
1 cup lowfat vanilla yogurt
2 eggs, beaten

Filling:
2 cups thinly sliced peaches
1 cup thinly sliced strawberries
¼ cup sugar
1 cup whipping cream
1 cup lowfat vanilla yogurt
Fresh mint, if desired

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. For shortcake, combine baking mix and sugar. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in yogurt and eggs until dry ingredients are just moistened. Do not over mix. Spread batter into well-buttered, 9-inch round cake pan. Bake 30 to 35 minutes, or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan 15 minutes. Remove from pan; cool completely on wire rack.

Meanwhile, for filling, combine peaches, strawberries, and sugar. Cover and refrigerate. To serve, split shortcake in half horizontally. Whip cream until stiff peaks form; gently fold in yogurt. Place bottom layer on serving plate, cut side up. Top with half of the whipped cream mixture and half the fruit. Repeat layers ending with fruit. Garnish with mint. Serve immediately.

BROWN SUGAR PEACH ICE CREAM

4 large peaches
1¼ cups firmly packed light brown sugar, divided
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1½ cups milk
3 eggs, beaten
1½ cups whipping cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Puree or finely chop peaches. Stir in ½ cup brown sugar and lemon juice, reserve. Combine milk, eggs and remaining ¾ cup brown sugar in medium saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and coats spoon, about 15 minutes. Stir in cream and extract. Chill. Stir peaches into cream mixture. Freeze in ice cream maker according to manufacturer's directions.

Variation: For a peach swirl, fold the sweetened peaches into cream mixture after freezing in ice cream maker. Place ice cream in freezer for at least 1 hour before serving.

Dessert critics will go wild over these Peach-Toffee Shortcakes, which is the Featured Recipe for today.

PEACHES AND CREAM PIE

¾ cup flour
3¼ -ounce vanilla pudding (not instant)

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Three contestants will vie for the Pennsylvania and Lancaster County Poultry Queen title during the annual pageant scheduled for August 6 at the Farm and Home Center.

The contestants are Mindy Lee Dulio, Manheim; Heather Lynn Fox, Lancaster; and Melissa Kay Stauffer, Ephrata.

Mindy is the 17-year-old daughter of David and Darlene Yeager. She will be a senior at Manheim Central High School and is attending vo-tech for cosmetology. At school, Mindy is active in cheerleading and the junior achievement program. She completed every available art course offered by her high school and has earned an honorable mention in scholastics.

In her spare time, Mindy enjoys swimming, roller skating, and spending time with friends.

Mindy became interested in the poultry industry because of her mother, who is employed by Pennfield in the broiler-grower department.

Heather Lynn Fox is the 17-year-old daughter of Thomas and Margaret Fox. In the fall, she will be a senior at Conestoga Valley High School, where she is active in cheerleading, yearbook staff, Against Drugs Club, and Prom Club.

Heather has not decided what she would like to do after college. In her spare time, Heather enjoys spending time with friends, relaxing, and traveling.

Heather's ties to the poultry industry are through her job at Sauder Eggs as a case packer and through her father who works as a quality control inspector at Sauder's.

Melissa Kay Stauffer is the 18-year-old daughter of Clark and Lucy Stauffer.

Melissa attends the Lancaster Campus of Harrisburg Area Community College, where she is studying business administration.

Melissa had graduated from Ephrata High School where she was on the National Honor Society, a member of the girls' volleyball team, and secretary of the Future Business Leaders of America.

Melissa helps on her family's 65-acre farm with its 22,000 broilers, 15 acres of produce, and hog operation. She also works as a waitress at the Cloister Restaurant. In her spare time, Melissa enjoys volleyball, tennis, cooking, and spending time with friends and family.

During a recent get-together with the contestants, current Poultry Queen Melissa Yoder told them about the duties of the candidates. These include interviews with judges, a presentation promoting poultry products, and impromptu questioning during the pageant.

Applicants must have a knowledge or sincere interest in the poultry industry, and participate in parades, banquets, school promotions, and Farm Show activities.

This year, the contestant selected as the Lancaster County Poultry Queen will also serve as the Pennsylvania Poultry Queen. She will receive a $750 scholarship or cash. Two alternate queens will be chosen to assist in poultry promotions and will receive a scholarship or cash.

Tickets are $14 for the pageant dinner held on August 6 at 6:15 p.m. For tickets, contact any Lancaster County Poultry Association board member or call Guy Martin at (717) 626-2074 or (717) 397-7820.

Delco 4-H Receives Grants

MEDIA (Delaware Co.) — Delaware County 4-H has received two youth organization grants from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture totaling $17,500.

The general purpose of this grant program is to increase knowledge and awareness of agriculture among the youth of the state. In Delaware County, the grants will be used to support the educational programs and renovations at the 4-H Farm and Educational Center on the property of the Garrett-Williamson Foundation on Bishop Hollow Road, Newtown Square.

More than four thousand youth participate in the educational programs conducted from this location each year, according to Bud Bryan, Delaware County 4-H coordinator.

The grants consist of a $2,500 direct grant for educational programs relating to agriculture and a matching grant of $15,000 for capital expenditures and equipment related to agricultural education for youth. Volunteers in 4-H are working hard this year to raise the necessary funds to match this grant. No money from tax sources can be used for the match.

A recent visit from Boyd E. Wolff, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, included a tour of the 4-H Center and a presentation celebrating the state support of 4-H in Delaware County. 4-H members from throughout Delaware County showed Wolff the animals and poultry they are raising at the farm and discussed some of the educational programs they participate in there. Parents and adult volunteers also had an opportunity to discuss 4-H programs with the secretary.

Membership in 4-H is open to any youth age 8 through 19, regardless of where they live, race, creed, or handicap. Information on 4-H can be obtained from cooperative extension at (215) 565-9070.

TAKING TIME

Taking Time to Negotiate with Adult Children

In my local newsletter, I recently offered a publication, "Young Adults Returning Home: How to Make it Work." As people requested the booklet, I heard a variety of stories — children returning from college for the summer, a nephew being discharged from the Marines, a mother moving in with her son.

Families in many stages of life face the challenge of working out a positive arrangement when adult children live with older relatives. Adult Development Specialist, Barbara Davis, writes, "Both generations may need to outgrow old patterns of behavior to make way for more appropriate ones at this stage of life."

Children may benefit from this living arrangement in a variety of ways including:

• Having the opportunity to save money toward an important goal. Even when the child contributes to the household expenses, it is less expensive than living alone.

• Having an emotional support system during a transition.

In this living situation, the parent, aunt or other older adult has the opportunity to:

• Get to know their child as an adult and to build stronger family ties.

• Address unresolved problems and begin new relationships on a healthy footing.

• Gain financial and physical assistance around the home.

As good as these sound, you should consider the possible disadvantages before agreeing to the arrangement. Lack of privacy, lifestyle differences, and increased work around the home can all be disadvantages for the family. The young adult should move toward independence. A combined household may be too "comfortable," and he or she may delay this important growth.

Family members face the challenge of offering support without jeopardizing emotional separateness. There is a need to outgrow behaviors that foster the relationship of "dependent child" and "authority figure parent." Davis comments, "If your son expects you to continue doing his persoal laundry, he is falling back into the dependent child role. If you tell your daughter who she can and cannot date, you are excerising inappropriate authority."

In order to keep things from falling back into the patterns known during childhood, set up a family meeting to make some important decisions. It is perfectly healthy, and wise, to communicate the message, "We are happy to have you home for awhile, but don't expect things to be as they were in the past. I will not be here to cook supper every night."

As cold as it may sound, I've found that having a written record of the decisions made during this family meeting helps settle future conflicts.

✔ What rules will we follow regarding guests? How many? Overnight? How often?

✔ What financial obligations do we each have? Part of becoming a responsible adult is learning to budget for necessities. You may want to consider asking the young adult to contribute 15 percent of her income toward household operation or to be responsible for particular bills.

✔ How will household jobs like laundry, grocery shopping, menu planning, meal preparation and clean-up be handled? Will these jobs be rotated?

✔ Will we keep each other informed about our schedules? How? What responsibility, if any, do we have to share information if plans have changed?

✔ How will the privacy needs of both parties be met?

This conversation will be a difficult one. Yet taking the time to make reasonable decisions now will set the stage for a positive experience where everyone can grow and feel both supported and yet valued as an independent adult.

CLARION (Clarion Co.) — Despite temperatures in the high 90s last week, a large group of young women started on the road to promoting the dairy industry and serving as goodwill ambassadors for agriculture.

Sixty-three county dairy princesses and their alternates, including three representatives from Maryland, and Pennsylvania's Fair Queen and Honey Queen and Princess attended the 1993 Dairy Princess Training Seminar at Lycoming College in Williamsport.

Joined by 51 adult committee persons and mothers, these young women spent an intensive three days learning the do's and don'ts of agricultural public relations as well as information on the dairy industry, nutrition, promotion techniques, and personal enhancement tips.

The seminar was planned and conducted by Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc. with the aid of 25 industry representatives, media specialists, former Pennsylvania dairy royality, and authorities on hairstyling, makeup, and social conduct.

All of these young women will spend the coming year representing agriculture and promoting its products in their local areas. They will visit school classrooms, conduct demonstrations in grocery store and malls, speak at meetings of farm and non-farm organizations, write news articles, and participate in radio and TV interviews.

In September, the 36 Pennsylvania county princesses will compete for the title of Pennsylvania Dairy Princess or Alternate. The state pageant will be held on Saturday evening, September 18, at the Sheraton Inn-East, Harrisburg.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Program is supported by Pennsylvania's dairy farmers through the advertising and promotion agencies of American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Middle Altantic Milk Marketing Association, Federal Order #36-Mideast UDIA, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, and Allied Milk Producers, in addition to independent contributors from dairies, cooperatives, and individuals.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Summer is a time for reunions. They might be large or small — a one family affair or a large group who share a common name.

Recently, I attended a picnic of the "Landis" family. People attended from several states to hear a speaker tell us of the trials of our ancestors in Europe. Many Anabaptists traveled from Switzerland to Germany due to persecution.

Eventually three Landis brothers came to America in the early 1700s. Two settled in Lancaster County and their progeny have been carefully researched and printed in book form. Now they are thinking of updating the records. That will be a time-consuming job for someone.

My parents often talked of their ancestors and so I heard a lot about the good ones and the bad ones. You can't help but have some of both kinds if you go back several generations. Both sides of my family have delved into history and some are still working on publishing a book.

A "Shreiner" book, my maiden name, is to be printed sometime in the future. A distant relative in Georgia has gone to Germany to search church records. Apparently, Shreiners were Lutherans from the very beginning of that denomination. My great, great grandfather was a Justice of the Peace in our township for 40 years. And, his life is written up in Ellis and Evans 1883 "History of Lancaster County, Pa."

History is interesting but much more important is the present day and what we do with our lives. We all hope to leave something of value when we leave. I do not mean money but rather a good impression and pleasant memories.

Butterfly Gardening Attracts Fancy Fliers

Pat Durkin
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Marian Stern scoops up two potted buddleias, called "butterfly bushes" because they're irresistible to the gaudy insect.

"One's for my mother, one's for me," she says at a Washington-area nursery. "My whole neighborhood's into butterflies."

The ubiquitous butterfly, long taken for granted in the United States — North America is home to some 700 species — has new cachet. Attracting butterflies, whose names are as fancy as their colors, has become a gardening trend.

The notion of a back yard alive with great spangled fritillaries and black swallowtails is compatible with the latest gardening techniques.

It has become increasingly popular to use fewer chemicals, lure wildlife with plants and grow old-fashioned cutting flowers, like cosmos and hollyhock, which butterflies prefer. Finding nectar in the single blossoms of these turn-of-the-century favorites is easier than in the cabbagelike blooms of many modern hybrids.

"It didn't take a rocket scientist to see the butterfly garden coming," says Doug Jimerson, gardening editor of Better Homes and Gardens magazine, which featured butterflies on its May cover.

The promise of a quick payoff also helps drive the trend. A garden plot as small as a crib mattress can lure painted ladies and skippers the first year. What's required are plenty of fragrant, funnel-shaped flowers, splashes of purple — and no chemicals.

Novice butterfly gardeners look for a simple approach, says Jill Gonzales of Behnke Nurseries Co., one of the largest plant marketers in the Washington-Baltimore area. "They want low-maintenance plants that produce flowers most of the summer," she says. "More often than not, we send them home with a buddleia."

Buddleia has become the unrivaled star of the butterfly-garden trend. The fast-growing, airy shrub sends up cluster after cluster of flowers that are magnets for monarchs or painted ladies cruising the neighborhood.

Fascination with butterflies sometimes surfaces where it's least expected. Ed Gould, a curator at the National Zoological Park in Washington, noticed that visitors were as enthralled by butterflies flitting outside the cages as they were by the animals inside.

"I'd see parents saying to a kid, 'Look at that zebra,' he says, "while the kid was saying, 'Look at that butterfly.' "

Gould, who has a large butterfly garden at home, persuaded zoo administrators to add plants around the wild-animal exhibits that would attract even more butterflies. Signs were erected explaining the relationship between a particular plant and a butterfly species.

"Those signs were so popular that we put up another one just about butterfly gardening," Gould tells National Geographic. "You'd be surprised how many people stop to read it."

The butterfly-garden phenomenon hasn't been lost on businesses. The Chevron Corp. makes much of the sand dunes it preserves for a dime-size endangered blue butterfly near Los Angeles. Other companies go out of their way to protect sulfurs, checkerspots and other common butterflies.

"Half of our certified sites include butterfly habitat," says Darlene Pais of the Wildlife Habitat Enhancement Council, a Washington-based organization of industries that conserve wildlife on their grounds.

E.I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. created a butterfly garden three years ago at its experimental station in Wilmington, Del. "It was just 70 square feet, but our employees loved it," says Betty Jean Daisey, who helped plan the project. "Many of them put in butterfly gardens at home."

Inevitably, the butterfly boom has created a business all its own. Charmed by thousands of butterflies attracted to his Florida patio, Ron Boender dreamed up Butterfly World, which opened near Fort Lauderdale five years ago. The tropical butterfly zoo is patterned after "butterfly houses" that have been popular in England for decades.

Butterfly zoos have opened since in Georgia and California. Others are planned in New York, Oregon and other states.

At least six books on butterfly gardening have been written in the past three years. Numerous how-to articles have appeared in newspapers and magazines.

People are signing up for butterfly outings and visiting butterfly zoos that are opening up around the country.

Enthusiasts participate in butterfly surveys and take butterfly identification courses. This year they founded the North American Butterfly Association, headquartered in New York.

During the week of July Fourth more than 100 teams of butterfly fanciers will count and classify butterflies in communities from Oregon to Maryland. The annual event is sponsored by the Xerces Society, a non-profit organization based in Portland, Ore., and dedicated to preserving insects, shellfish and other animals that have external skeletons.

"Except for the butterfly, they're not the most appealing creatures," says Xerces director Melody Allen. "That's why we use the butterfly as our poster species."

The monarch, shown feeding in a butterfly garden at the Esalen Institute in Big Sur, Calif., is a common summer visitor to North America. While most butterflies stay in one place, the monarch is a legendary traveler. East Coast monarchs migrate 3,000 miles to El Rosario, Mexico, for the winter.

A yellow swallowtail feeds on the pollen of a red flower in a private butterfly garden in Sebastopol, Calif. Such gardens are on the increase as Americans find new fascination in butterflies. Some 700 species of the colorful insect are native to North America. All it takes to attract them are the right kinds of flowers and no chemicals. Buddleia is their favorite.

Dairy Cows In The Future

VINCE MAZZOLA
Everybody's Science

Dairy cows of the future will send out radio signals to alert a farmer when an animal is sick.

A tiny sensor in the cow takes temperature readings that will be transmitted every 15 minutes to a computer operating on the dairy farm. "We put together a 'health watch' system for dairy cows that can be built using off-the-shelf equipment," says Alan M. Lefcourt, a U.S. Department of Agriculture animal scientist.

"Changes in a cow's temperature patterns can signal the onset of diseases," he says. "Our electronic system is so sensitive it can sense a problem in the absence of a detectable temperature rise or other clinical symptoms."

Lefcourt says the system has monitored 12 cows daily for two years and has been successful in catching the slightest blip in temperatures. He is talking to feedlot operators and dairy farmers about doing field tests on full-size herds to verify his studies at Beltsville, Md.

An early alert of sick cows "would reduce the farmer's cost of treatment and increase the cure rate," says Lefcourt, a biomedical engineer for USDA's Agricultural Research Service. He says the system's cost could be repaid in savings on medical bills and returns on milk production.

A dairy farmer also could install an alarm that would automatically warn the farmer of an abrupt, relatively high rise in a cow's temperature. This could mean an attack of life-threatening acute mastitis that needs to be treated immediately," he explains.

Lefcourt originally designed the computer-based system to detect mastitis, an infection of a cow's udder. Mastitis costs U.S. dairy farmers $2 billion annually for treatment and lost milk production.

A cow's temperature also can be monitored to detect when a cow is in heat, or estrous, and is ready to be bred. "Currently, dairy farmers miss detecting estrous about half the time," he says. "This mistake costs farmers over $200 million annually." (Agricultural Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture)

Blair County Dairy Princess Adopts Farming

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.) — Susan Willey, 1993 dairy princess for Blair County, didn't grow up on a farm but she can't remember when she wasn't interested in agriculture.

"My grandfather was a farmer," she says. "But, he sold out when I was pretty young. However, my brother was old enough to be interested. When his interest continued, little sister would tag along to see what he was up to."

"Before long, I was as interested as he was. He got me the job I have now, milking cows for the Allen Edwards farm."

Edwards has a 120-acre farm with 75 Holsteins. Susan does most of the milking twice daily. It's a job she enjoys despite the days when the cows act up, kicking off their milkers or squeezing her between two cows. "The good just outweighs the bad," she says.

Her employer is so impressed with her abilities in the dairy industry, it was he who convinced her to enter the contest.

"I was a shoe-in," Susan admits. "I was the only contestant. My main goal for this year is to increase the number of applicants next year."

A special banquet for her crowning was held on June 25 at Wissinger's Restaurant.

A senior at Central High School, Susan credits her FFA advisor, Tom Ritchey, for furthering her interest in agriculture. "I'm president of FFA at Central this year," Susan says. "The first time a girl has ever had that title at my school, but I hope it is not the last."

Since Susan's family does not have the farmland to support dairy cows, (something she dreams of owning), Susan chose pigs and goats for her FFA projects. She is also interested in landscaping and plans to do over the family backyard next spring.

Her interest in the princess contest extended over into a desire to communicate with the public about the importance of milk in the diet. She plans to be busy constantly throughout the coming year doing handouts at local stores, offering samples of dairy recipes to school children and in nursing homes, and talking to various organizations.

It will all be good preparation for her possible careers in teaching, or communications. "I would most like to be an ag teacher or in journalism, maybe agriculture journalism."

Her milking pay check is being saved for her education as well as for a trip to the National FFA convention at Kansas City this fall.

In addition to her work schedule and FFA activities, Susan finds time for the FTA, the school newspaper, speech club, and is on the tennis team.

She is a senior Girl Scout, tutors reading for younger children, and is a member of the Clover Creek United Church of Christ.

Her parents are Merl and Rahoma Willey of Martinsburg.

After 2-Year Absence Dairy Princess Reigns In Mifflin County

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

MIFFLINTOWN (Mifflin Co.) — Cathy Gro's first assignment as Mifflin County's new Dairy Princess began with educating the very youngest — a newborn baby. One day before her informal crowning at the Wesley Chapel United Methodist fellowship hall near McVeytown, Gro visited the Lewistown Hospital to give the first baby born in July (Ice Cream Month) a cow bib and cow rattle. Although too young to appreciate the educational attention, Cynthia Hodge's parents, Paula and Michael Hodge of Mifflinntown, took home free dairy products, a Dairy Queen gift certificate, and an interesting, dairy-oriented first-day memory for their daughter's scrapbook.

The following evening, on Sunday, July 4th, Cathy Gro accepted the crown of Dairy Princess from Cheryl Glick, committee chairperson, after a dairy princess absence in the county for two years.

Now this sixteen-year-old looks ahead to the goals she's set for herself, each separate but related.

The obvious goal of promoting dairy products comes with the crown and sash. And her farming background and dairy princess training will help back her up.

Gro helps her father on her grandfather Paul Lewis' dairy farm. All together they milk 92 Holsteins and Ayrshires, but Cathy took time to attend the state dairy princess training seminar in Williamsport recently. There she learned more specific details about nutrition, cow industry information, and how to tailor this information to a particular age group.

All of this seemed helpful to a girl who considers herself shy and who wanted to gain the confidence she had heard others had gained through the dairy princess program. The training seminar also gave tips on poise, make-up, and hairstyling.

Now Gro plans to add the dairy princess college incentive program to her goal to promote the dairy industry. She's chosen the higher level of the incentive program — to conduct 30 school programs, 18 radio spots, 18 newspaper articles, 12 non-farm and five farm speaking engagements, five special events, and 16 store and mail presentations — to earn a $400 scholarship.

This scholarship ties in with Gro's plans after high school — to earn her degree in elementary and early childhood education.

"I'm looking forward to working with kids," Gro said. And, looking at her upcoming schedule, she won't have a long wait. An Atlantic Dairy Cooperative picnic at Bland's Park near Tyrone will be followed by a busy August, starting with the Mifflin County Youth Fair where she'll hand out milk and cheese one evening and ribbons during the daily show another evening.

Then comes a day at Ag Progress day August 17 to 19, the Mifflin County Holstein Association's Summer Classic Sale at the Youth Park in Reedsville on August 19, the Championship Show at the Huntingdon Fairgrounds on August 21, and the District Show at the Mifflin County Youth Park the beginning of September.

All of this will give Cathy good public speaking and poise practice for the State Dairy Princess Pageant at the Sheraton East in Harrisburg September 16-18.

But back home, working behind the scenes for any dairy princess is the County Dairy Princess Committee. Mifflin County's Chairperson Cheryl Glock is joined by Jaylene Yoder, Sandy King, Crystal King, Marlene Smoker, and Deb Rheam. Together they took Cathy's speaking schedule (call Deb Rheam at 935-2737) and round up financial support for the program.

But there's another group that's vital to the future of the Dairy Princess Program — the Mifflin County Dairy Maids. These 14- and 15-year-old dairy princess assistants learn by helping and will hopefully one day compete for the title of Dairy Princess. This year Dana Smoker, daughter of Mike and Marlene Smoker of Belleville, Erin Goss, daughter of Larry and Judy Goss of Lewistown, and Joanna Pecht, daughter of Roland and Marthaa Pecht of Milroy and will be Mifflin County's Dairy Maids.

Although there are none in Mifflin County, there is a place for seven to 12-year-olds as a Dairy Miss adn ages four to six as a Little Dairy Miss. Contact Cheryl Glock at (717) 935-5277 if interested.

Cathy Gro's year as Dairy Princess is goal oriented — a confidence-building, scholarship oriented way to spread healthy facts about dairy foods. And since dairy foods play such an important part in maintaining healthy bodies, Cathy wants to pass this fresh fruit recipe on to you. And remember: MILK! It does a body good!

Dip For Fresh Fruit

1 small package instant vanilla pudiding
1 cup milk
3 ounces undiluted orange juice
¾ cup sour cream

Beat pudding, milk and juice together for 1-2 minutes. Beat in sour cream, Chill. Enjoy.

Cathy Gro stands with Jocelyn the Jersey, her sister Melissa's 4-H project.

Altoona Dairy Day

TIPTON (Centre Co.) — More than 1,100 people traveled to Bland's Park in Tipton to celebrate Altoona Dairy Day on June 17.

The event featured sampling of dairy products provided by Gallliker's Dairy of Johnstown, Ritchey's Dairy of Martinsburg, Sani-Dairy of Johnstown, and Valley Farms of State College. Several dairy princesses were on hand to help with the event.

In addition, Gai-Linn Tatrai, Altoona Bureau Chief for WWCP-TV, Altoona, won the media ice cream making contest with her recipe for "Peach Paradise" Ice Cream. Other participants in the contest were WFGY-FM of Altoona, WQWK-FM of State College, and The Daily Collegian of University Park.

Judges for the competition were Crystal Schweighofer, State Dairy Princess, Peter Gardella, Bland's Park Manager, and Joey Delgrosso of Delgrosso Foods in Tipton.

Amy Takes Time For Dairy Promotion

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

EVERETT (Bedford Co.) — Bouncy, bubbly, Amy Mearkle has wanted to be a dairy princess ever since she was Bedford County's first Dairy Maid in 1991.

"I believe in it," she says. She is also concerned that more girls aren't going out for the contest. "There is too much competition for time," she says. "Girls are involved in sports these days and there just aren't enough hours. Some farm daughters are so busy on the farm, their families can't spare them."

But, despite this, Amy hopes to get the interest growing again. "Next year I want to see some contestants," she says. "When the first Bedford County contest was held there were 20 contestants. I want it to be that way again."

Meantime, she is taking her new position seriously and has already begun writing newspaper articles, doing radio spots, and making appearances as Bedford County's new Dairy Princess.

The daughter of Linwood and Marjorie Mearkle, Amy has worked on the farm since she was able to work. "I do a lot of the evening milking," she says. "I try to be around on weekends in the summer to milk to give my brother a break, and I also tend the calves."

Amy's brother and sister-in-law, as well as their four children, all live and work on the Mearkle's 400-acre farm which supports 100 head of Holsteins. About 65 of these are producing at the present time.

In addition to her farm work, Amy works part time as a teller at the Everett Bank.

She says she is pleased with what the Dairy Princess contest offers in Bedford County and with what the princess can offer the public.

Her skit was on the "Story of Milk," set to the tune of Bette Midler's "Story of Love," and her speech was entitled, "Don't Give Your Bones a Break."

The crowning was held on Friday evening, June 18, at the Arena Restaurant in Bedford.

In addition to her farm and bank job, Amy is an officer in the Everett High Student Council where she will be a senior this fall. She is also on the Environthon Team, in the Spanish Honor Society, Language & Culture Club, and the Pennsylvania Jr. Academy of Science.

She is a member of the Rockville Independent Church Youth Group and has given many community service hours to the dairy committee.

In between all this she finds some time for her hobby of horseback riding. "My one horse is as old as I am," she says.

"Being Bedford County's dairy princess should be a good foundation for a future career in communications, hopefully, broadcasting," Amy admits.

"I once got to do some work on the Channel 10 Action News for Kids TV Show," she continues. "I never got communications out of my system after that."

"I hope I am able to convey my love for the dairy industry through communicating through all medias, by speaking, and writing," Amy says.

Chosen Bedford County's Dairy Maid for 1993 was Jennifer Brumbaugh, 15-year-old, daughter of Roger and Kathleen Brumbaugh of Saxton.

Amy Mearkle, Bedford County's new dairy princess, feeds the calves on her family farm near Everett.

Lebanon Extension home economist Alletta Schadler watches as Andrea Horner of Lebanon removes jars from canner.

Safe Canning With Alletta Schadler

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Canning isn't done the way Grandma used to do it.

Her methods are considered unsafe and potentially a risk for botulism poisoning.

Before you protest, "But I have been canning the same way that Grandma did for many years and have not had any problems," consider that bacteria appears to be increasing and it can survive and grow inside a sealed jar of food.

Poisonous toxin from even a tiny taste of of food containing clostridium botulinum is so potent that it can be fatal.

Pressure canning is the only recommended method for canning meat and low acid vegetables according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

If you need instructions on how to can safely, your county extension office is the place to contact. Extension services offer numerous free instruction sheets on preserving fruits, vegetables, and meats. Also available is a manual on the Complete Guide to Home Canning, for only $6. The easy to read manual includes extensive directions and recipes for almost every food that is preserved in the Northeast.

Recently Alletta Schadler, Lebanon County Extension home economist, held two workshops to teach safe canning methods. Here is some of the information she packed into a three-hour session, but if you are serious about canning, it is worth your time to attend a canning workshop. Contact your county extension office listed in the phone book under Penn State Cooperative Extension to see if your county is holding workshops or if you would like printed information on canning.

According to Schadler, high-acid foods such as fruits, most tomatoes, and pickled products are still considered safe to preserve by using a boiling water bath.

Canning is a safe and economical way to preserve summer produce if you adhere to the following guidelines.

- Choose fresh fruits and vegetables as many foods begin losing some of their vitamins when harvested.
- Wash or peel produce.
- Add lemon juice or vinegar to tomatoes since many tomatoes are now borderline acid and need acid to properly preserve it.
- Use clean jars, sterilized if the processed food is not boiled for more than 10 minutes
- Always use new self-sealing lids.
- Process jars in a boiling-water or pressure canner for the correct period of time.

While many people are using less sugar to can fruits, they should be aware that the more sugar that is used to can fruit such as peaches, the firmer it becomes.

One way to reduce sugar is to use a lighter syrup but hot pack the fruit instead of raw pack. Schadler said that she canned peaches with light syrup using both raw and hot packed methods. When the finished product was cooled, the hot packed peaches tasted much sweeter than those packed raw.

Here is the recipe for canning peaches according to the hot pack method.

Canning peaches

Dip peaches in boiling water for 30 to 60 seconds or until skins loosen. Dip quickly in cold water and slip off skins. Cut in half, remove pits, and slice if desired.

To prevent darkening, keep peeled fruit in water with vitamin C made by mixing 1 teaspoon ascorbic acid crystals, or six 500-milligram vitamin C tablets in 1 gallon water.

To make a very light syrup for a canner load of quarts, mix 1¼ cups sugar in 10½ cups water and heat to dissolve; or mix and dissolve 2¼ cups sugar in 9 cups water to make a light syrup; or 3¾ cups sugar in 8¼ cups water to make a medium syrup.

To make a hot pack, place drained fruit in boiling syrup, juice, or water and bring to a boil. Fill clean jars with hot fruit and cooking liquid. Leave ½ -inch headspace, and wipe sealing edge of jars with a clean, damp paper towel. Add lids and tighten screw bands. You may process jars in a boiling water or pressure canner.

To process in a boiling water canner, preheat canner filled halfway with water to 180 degrees for hot packs or 140 degrees for raw packs. Load sealed jars onto canner rack and lower with handles; or load one jar at a time with a jar lifter onto rack in canner. Add water if needed to a level of 1-inch above jars and add cover. When water boils vigorously, lower heat to maintain a gentle boil and process 25 minutes for quarts.

Pressure canning

Fruit can be processed in a pressure canner but it takes longer to do. Many people believe that pressure canning will save time, because the processing time is shorter, but in actuality it takes longer since the timing is begun after the correct pressure is reached (about 30 minutes), then the pressure canner is air-cooled, which takes 30 to 45 additional minutes.

Several types of pressure canners are available. The lightweight canners heat and cool faster. Weighted gauges are recommended more than dial gauges as weighted gauges never go out of calibration.

Note: Calibration of pressure canners with dial gauges should be checked annually. Most extension offices will check it free of charge. Parts may be purchased at most stores that sell canning supplies.

Handle canner lid gaskets and lids carefully as nicked edges will allow steam leaks during pressurization of canners. Follow these steps for successful pressure canning:

- Put 2 to 3 inches hot water in canner. Place filled jars on the rack, using a jar lifter. Fasten canner lid securely.
- Leave weight off vent port. Heat the fruit at the highest setting until steam flows for the vent port.
- Maintain high heat setting, exhaust steam 10 minutes, and then place weight on vent port. The canner will pressurize during the next 3 to 5 minutes.
- Start timing the process when the pressure reading on the dial gauge indicates that the recommended pressure has been reached or when the weighted gauge begins to jiggle or rock.
- Start timing process when the pressure reading on the dial gauge indicates that the recommended pressure has been reached, or when the weighted gauge begins to jiggle or rock.
- Regulate heat under the canner to maintain a steady pressure at or slightly above the correct gauge pressure. Quick and large pressure variations during processing may cause unnecessary liquid losses from jars.
- When the timed process is completed, turn off the heat, remove the canner from heat if possible, and let the canner depressurize. Do not force-cool the canner as it may result in food spoilage. Cooling the canner with cold running water or opening the vent port before the canner is fully depressurized will cause loss of liquid from jars and seal failures. Force-cooling may also warp the canner lift of older model canners, causing steam leaks.
- After the canner is depressurized, remove the weight from the vent port. Wait 2 minutes, unfasten the lid, and remove it carefully. Lift the lid away from you so that the steam does not burn your face.
- Remove jars with a lifter, and place on towel on cooling rack, if desired.

When shopping for a pressure canner, remember that stoves with ceramic tops or solid elements are not suitable for canning.

In addition to teaching proper canning techniques, Schadler addressed many myths and questions surrounding food preservation.

- Jars should not be covered with a towel when removed from canner as it slows down the cooling process.
- The average life of a canning jar is 13 to 14 uses. Although jars do not wear out, they develop stress points from bumping and will break under quick temperature changes.
- Do not turn jar rings too tight or air can not escape to allow a proper seal. Screw jar rings just to catch. Then tighten ¼ turn.
- Do not retighten jar lids after canning.
- Do not touch lids for 24 hours after canning process is completed.
- Do not turn jars upside down.
- After jars are cooled for 24 hours, remove bands.
- Reuse jar bands as long as they are not rusty.
- Do not boil lids. Heat to 180 degrees to soften sealing compound before placing on jar top.
- Shelf-life for lids should not be more than than 2 or 3 years as lid sealant may become brittle and not soften.
- Make sure lids are perfect when removing from box. If scratched, do not use.
- Sterilize jars if processing food less than 10 minutes such as in jelly making.
- Do not oven can.
- Hard water leaves calcium deposits on jars. To avoid, bring water to a boil and let cool before placing jars in the water. The calcium will precipitate out as the water cools. Pour the clear water into your canner.

Pickles

Use canning pickling salt to prevent clumping or cloudiness. Iodized salt reacts to sugar and results in odd coloring such as making cauliflower pink or purple.

Use pickling lime to make pickles crisp. Do not substitute gardening lime.

Use fresh pickling and whole spices as spices become flat. Use fresh each year. Dill heads may be frozen to keep fresh.

May substitute 1 to 2 tablespoons dill seed in place of 1 head dill.

PICKLED BEETS

7 pounds of 2- to 2½ -inch diameter beets
4 cups vinegar
¼ cup canning or pickling salt
2 cups sugar
2 cups water
2 cinnamon sticks
12 whole cloves
4 to 6 onions, if desired

Yield: about 8 pints.

Trim off beet tops, leaving 1-inch stem and roots to prevent bleeding of color. Wash thoroughly. Sort for size. Cover similar sizes together with boiling water and cook until tender (about 25 to 30 minutes). Caution: Drain and discard liquid. Cool beets. Trim off roots and stems and slip off skins. Slice into ¼ -inch slices. Peel and thinly slice onions. Combine vinegar, salt, sugar, and fresh water. Put spices in cheesecloth bag and add to vinegar mixture. Bring to a boil. Add beets and onions. Simmer 5 minutes. Remove spice bag. Fill jars with beets and onions, leaving ½ -inch headspace. Add hot vinegar solution, allowing ½ -inch headspace. Adjust lids and process to 30 minutes in boiling water bath.

Grant E. Campbell Outstanding Ag Student

Grant E. Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. Campbell of R.D. #1 Lykens, was recently named winner of the 1993 Dekalb Agricultural Accomplishment Award according to his ag science instructors, Stanley Weaver and Mark Dietrich.

The award, sponsored nationwide by Dekalb Plant genetics, is presented to the outstanding senior agriculture student demonstrating superior scholarship and leadership in a supervised agricultural program. Presenting the award was Dekalb dealer M.G. Henninger & Son Inc.

Grant is a 1993 graduate of Upper Dauphin Area High School, where he has been president of the local FFA. Grant has competed in state FFA land judging contests at Penn State, state and national FFA Chorus, and area and regional FFA public speaking contests. His agricultural program consisted of home garden projects, greenhouse project, and work experience on his family's dairy farm. Following graduation, Grant will serve as 1993-1994 state FFA treasurer.

As this year's winner, Grant receives a pin and certificate, and his name will be inscribed on a special plaque displayed in the school's main lobby. The Dekalb Award, often considered the highest honor a vo-ag student can receive on the local level, is presented at nearly 3,000 schools annually.

Five students from Red Lion Area High School recently attended FFA Activities Week at Penn State, competing in state contests and attending the Summer Convention along with approximately 1,200 other FFA members, advisors, and guests.

Those attending who received awards were Shanna Daugherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Daugherty, who received a gold award in meats judging; LeAnn Graham, daughter of Glenn Graham, who received a bronze award in the dairy judging contest; and Tracey Willwert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Willwert, who received a bronze award in horse judging.

Other students attending were Regina Shelton, daughter of Cindy Spangler, who participated in the dairy judging contest and Joseph Strayer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Strayer, who also participated in the dairy judging contest.

Also attending the convention was former National FFA officer Marty Coates. He presented a leadership workshop on goal setting and was the featured speaker at the first session of the convention. The featured speaker at the second session of the convention was former Pennsylvania officer Andy Rill.

The students were accompanied to the annual statewide event, which is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Vocational Education and Penn State's Department of Agricultural and Extension Education, by Guy W. Naugle, Jr., agricultural education instructor.

AUTOFLOW™

MILKING STALLS

With Non-Stop Cow Traffic

Using less stalls at maximum efficiency lowers the total cost of your automation and improves labor efficiency. Comparison shows it takes as much as 50% fewer AutoFlow stalls to achieve the same throughput as with similarly automated herringbone and parallel systems.

As milking equipment becomes more sophisticated and more expensive, the investment per stall becomes an important factor. The Surge AutoFlow parlor maximizes efficiencies per stall without sacrificing cow throughput.

4-H HAPPENINGS

SOLANCO 4-H

The third meeting of the Solanco Community 4-H Club was held June 22 in the Hoffman building.

Lori Burkholder, host of Channel 8 Live, came to talk to the members. She highlighted the pros and cons of television careers, and the ways you can become involved in television.

She told the members that on Wednesdays, when C.S. Keys, her co-host, has off the co-host spot is opened to the public. The next 4-H meeting will be on July 27 in the Hoffman Building at 7:30 p.m. The talent show is going to be performed at this meeting.

4-H Foundation Awards 1993 Grants

The Delaware 4-H Foundation Inc. has rewarded 1993 innovative program grants to three clubs.

The grants went to Giorgianna Daugherty of the Fantastics 4-H Club, Newark; the Stateline 4-H Club, Seaford; and the Highlanders 4-H Club, Wilmington. Grants were awarded in two areas: understanding other people and community service.

Daugherty's $50 grant will assist her in developing a "Sights and Sounds of Canadian Culture" program to be presented to local 4-H groups.

The Stateline 4-H Club will use their $50 grant to buy water-quality testing materials. The club has adopted Pen Branch Stream as part of the Delaware Stream Watch program and will be running monthly tests and inspections.

The $65 grant that the Highlanders 4-H Club received was used by Mike Nye and Brian Raughley to take photo portraits of Ministry of Caring day-care children. The photos were presented to the children's parents.

4-H Dairy Training

Warren County hosted the annual northwestern Pennsylvania 4-H dairy overnighter recently. More than 100 four-H'ers and many leaders and parents from nine counties attended the two-day training. Several tours and dairy judging highlighted the first day of events.

Dr. Gary Rogers, Penn State dairy specialist, was the featured speaker. He discussed dairy animal selection, changes to the unified score card, and dairy genetics. After Dr. Rogers spoke to the entire group, the 4-H'ers divided into three groups according to age.

A dairy judging contest was held. The juniors placed three classes of dairy heifers and cows. The top ten winners were 1. Jonathon Kosa, Potter County. 2. Maria Mowrey, Jefferson. 3. Jenni Owens, Warren.

The intermediate group had to place six classes of dairy heifers and cows. Those placing were 1. Mark Blair, Warren County. 2. Mandy Hitchcock, Warren. 3. Jeremy Williams, Crawford.

The intermediate group also had to prepare a two-minute talk on choosing a 4-H dairy project. The top placers for their talk were 1. Shannon Cavanagh, Crawford County. 2. Paul Smith, Clarion. 3. Amanda Gilkinson, Erie. Combining the two scores the highest overal placings were: 1. Mark Blair, Warren County. 2. Jeremy Williams, Crawford. 3. Mandy Hitchcock, Warren.

The senior division also had to place six classes of animals. Highest for placing were: 1. Emily Smith, Clarion County. 2. Sara Duncan, Crawford. 3. Brian Gourley, Warren. The seniors had to give oral reasons on two classes of dairy cows. The top reasons scores were 1. Candy Hitchcock, Warren County. 2. Sara Duncan, Crawford. 3. Andy Marzka, Crawford. The best overall scores were 1. Sara Duncan, Crawford County. 2. Candy Hitchcock, Warren. 3. Emily Smith, Clarion.

Upon completion of the dairy judging contest the juniors went on a tour of the Kinzua Dam. The intermediate and senior groups toured Tussey Mountain Animal Bedding and Ray's Recycling. Tussey Mountain processes old newspaper into animal bedding and Ray's transforms raw garbage into fuel pellets.

After dinner, the 4-H'ers painted T-shirts, participated in skill-a-thons, and enjoyed games.

The second day had a series of workshops for the juniors. They learned about dairy breeds, animal parts, preparing a show bed, and organizing a show box. The intermediate and senior groups had workshops on animal health care skills, clipper maintenance, hoof trimming, and dairy nutrition.

The final event was a mock auction of 12 dairy heifers. The 4-H'ers divided into 10 teams and were allotted $2,500 to bid on the animals. All the heifers were given a value based on their genetics and appearance. The team that spent their money the wisest were the winners.

Local Teens Attend Conference

Katie Cressman of Telford and Dee Williams of Chalfont recently participated in the fifth annual Penn State 4-H Ambassador Conference held June 21-23 at the University Park Campus where they attended workshops on interviewing skills, public speaking, and marketing.

These ambassadors will serve as spokespersons for the 120,000 4-H members of Pennsylvania. Dee was a Junior Advisor to the program, and served as a 4-H State Ambassador Team member this past year.

Serving on the Conference Management committee were Key 4-H Leader Betty Lutz of Spring City and Montgomery County Extension Agent Nancy Kadwill of Collegeville.

Katie will be a county 4-H Ambassador for the coming year and hopes to promote 4-H through radio, school talks, displays and programs for civic organizations.

In addition to the workshops, the conference delegates visited with a number of Penn State faculty and administrators during a reception at the Nittany Lion Inn sponsored by Williams Asbury, vice president for student affairs.

State 4-H ambassadors promote the 4-H youth program and the land-grant university system and are available to speak to groups about Penn State Cooperative Extension and 4-H.

For more information about the program, contact Nancy Kadwill, 4-H Coordinator, PO Box 20, 1015 Rt. 133, Creamery, PA 19430-0020 (215) 489-4315.

Adams County 4-H

Three Adams County 4-H teens will be attending a week-long conference, 4-H Citizenship Washington Focus (CWF), at the National 4-H Center in Chevy Chase, Md.

The 4-H teens are Denise Green, Gettysburg; Kim Funt, Arendtsville; and Debbie Wilkinson, Gettysburg. The National 4-H Center, located just outside Washington, D.C., is the perfect place for the 4-H members to stay while learning about citizenship, our democratic form of government, and current issues facing the federal government. The theme for this year's CWF Conference is "A People's Power."

Adams County 4-H teens and 41 other teens from Pennsylvania, will join members from five other states to use our nation's catitol as a classroom for a week. Meetings with congressmen and senators, along with visits to federal agencies, historical buildings, and cultural centers allow the 4-H teens to participate as they learn. This is the traditional "learn by doing" 4-H trademark.

Between visits to Washington, the 4-H teens will attend discussion and lecture workshops on what they experienced. They also will explore ways to make use of the concepts for themselves and for their communities at home. After a week at CWF, these 4-H teens will have a better understanding of government "by the people and for the people."

4-H'ers Participate In Demonstration Contest

In the annual Somerset County 4-H Demonstration Contest, 43 4-H club members presented a total of 35 demonstrations in six project areas. The event was held Wednesday, June 16, at the Somerset Area Vo-Tech School. Project work in categories of animal science, foods and nutrition, home and family management, clothing and textiles, engineering and plant science was demonstrated.

Senior division winners will move on to the State 4-H Days at the Penn State campus July 27-29. Premiums and operating funds for the contest were provided by the Somerset County 4-H Development Fund, Inc.

Judges for the event were David Antram, Rachael Mostoller, and

Somerset County 4-H Foods Revue

Forty-eight 4-H members competed Wednesday, June 16, in the 1993 4-H Foods Revue Contest.

This is the 22nd year for this competition in Somerset County. The purpose for this part of the 4-H foods and nutrition program is to help 4-H'ers apply nutritional information in preparing a meal as well as developing talents of graceful entertaining.

The overall category for this year's competition was the "Milk and Dairy Products" foods group. Winners included:

Senior Division: Main Dish - Sara Hillegas; Meal Accompaniment - Jenn Black; Snacks/Appetizer - Debbie Black; Dessert - Jessica Pucci.

Junior Division: Main Dish - Malinda Kirk; Meal Accompaniment - Melissa Schrock; Snacks/Appetizer - Heidi Svonavec; Dessert - Kristin Wagner.

Judges for the event were Edna Stairs and Beth Will. The 4-H Leader Committee for this event included Betty Lou Svonavec, Cindy Walker, and Marie Waltermire.

This contest is open to any 4-H member enrolled in a foods project and is sponsored by the Somerset County 4-H Development Fund, Inc.

Also held as a Foods and Nutrition Quiz Bowl Contest. A leader committee comprised of Barbara Shaffer and Marcia Wysocki prepared this contest to introduce local 4-H members to foods judging. This contest is held on a statewide basis at State 4-H Days in July, and Somerset County 4-H'ers will participate this year for the first time.

Winners in this contest include seniors Jessica Pucci, Michele Shaffer, Erica Walker, and Christy Wysocki; and juniors Jennifer Maul, Amanda Meier, Bethany Seifert and Melanie Stutzman.

Dauphin Co. 4-H

The Dauphin County 4-H Seeing Eye Puppy Club welcomes any visitors who would like to learn more about the program.

The club meets the second Thursday of every month at the Dauphin County Agricultural Building on Peter Mountain Road. The meetings begin with a training session followed by a business meeting. At the end of the meeting, refreshments are served.

Besides these regular meetings, the Puppy Club also holds special outings. Some of these outings include hospital visits, mall walks, demonstrations, and other places which help socialize the puppies. The 4-H'ers also individually take their puppies to church, stores, restaurants, and malls.

There are currently six puppies in the club. Their names are Garbo, Hank, Vasco, Yori, Lewis, and Jamie. The club is also getting several new puppies in the upcoming weeks. The club receives the puppies when they are two months old and returns them when they are approximately sixteen months old. Puppies range in size from 25 pounds to 80 pounds. The breeds used are German shepherds, Labrador retrievers, and Golden retrievers.

On July 17, the club visited the Extended Care Unit of the Polyclinic Hospital. On July 29, the club joins the Lancaster County 4-H Puppy Club and together rides the Strasburg R.R. In August, the club will be attending the Dauphin County 4-H Fair being held at the Farm Show. This is a competition between 4-H'ers. Details about these outings will be given at the next meeting.

During the last weekend of June, Seeing Eye puppy raisers and their puppies from Pennsylvania and Delaware attended Puppy Camp. This is a time for 4-Hers to meet new people and puppies, make crafts, play games, and socialize their puppies. Everyone who attended remarked of the wonderful experiences shared by all.

On June 26, Katy Yingst participated in a very special event. She was chosen out of all the puppy raisers in New Jersey, Delaware, and Pennsylvania to enter the Mickey Mouse Club Hall of Fame. Katy and her puppy Jamie spent all day Saturday getting filmed for an episode that will appear on the Mickey Mouse Club. The program will be aired sometime in September. Katy and Jamie also received a Mickey Mouse Club Hall of Fame trophy.

If you are interested in joining our 4-H club, raising a puppy, or just visiting a meeting, contact leader Cathy Yingst, at (717) 599-5917.

Puppy Club

In the past few months, the members and puppies of the Lebanon 4-H Extra Special Puppy Club did many exciting activities.

They went on a mall walk, a bus trip, and library information visits to Lebanon, Fredericksburg, and Myerstown. Additionally, several members attended a teen leader meeting in Lancaster and Puppy Camp at French Creek State Park.

Two members attended 4-H Camp at Hickory Run State Park. Five members presented at the Lebanon County Presentation Night, where they received blue ribbons. One member completed a sewing project and participated in dress revue.

The Lebanon County Fair will find members exhibiting puppies, sheep, ceramic pieces, puppy and wildlife posters, sewing projects, and more. Future activities include Regional Presentation Night, a visit of the pups to a Bible school, and an ice cream social for the club roundup.

Children from the age of nine and adults are invited to join 4-H Seeing Eye Puppy Clubs and raise a Golden Retriever, Labrador, or German Shepherd. Contact your county 4-H agent for more information.

4-H Goat Club

The York County Kiddn' Around Goat Club's July meeting was held July 9, at 7:30 p.m. at the York County 4-H Center.

The American Pledge was led by Ricky Lybarger and the 4-H pledge led by Raymond Newlin. The roll call was taken by Joel Everly. The club discussed upcoming goat shows and signed up for 4-H Olympics.

The York County Roundup Goat Show will be held on July 30 at the York Fairgrounds at 10 a.m. The Club's next meeting is Aug. 6 at 7:30 p.m.

For more information call the York County Extension Office and ask for Heather Peters (717) 757-9657 or Rose Sprenkle, at (717) 225-5179.

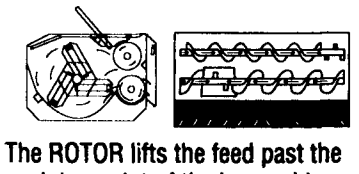
ROTO-MIX IV

First we made it process and mix baled hay, then we made it affordable.

It is now possible, in most cases, to mix baled hay and other roughages without a tub grinder...the ROTO-MIX IV with the ROTO-HAY PROCESSOR™ (Patent Pending) combines mixing and processing steps into one. The ROTO-MIX IV with the ROTO-HAY PROCESSOR saves time and money by allowing you to grind only what you need, faster and with less shrinkage. The end result is a TMR feed mix that is fresher and less pulverized than the traditional tub grinder method...two things that are very important when it comes to the nutritional value of the feed.

The ROTO-MIX IV with the ROTO-HAY PROCESSOR is available in truck, trailer, and stationary models with varying capacities.

It's all made possible through the technology of the patented ROTO-MIX® Mixing System.



The ROTOR lifts the feed past the wedging point of the lower side auger, giving you a fluffier ration while lowering power requirements. Total feed movement in the mixing chamber eliminates dead spots common in conventional auger mixers.

GRAZING MANAGEMENT

Dr. Marvin H. Hall
Penn State

Grazing management involves the control of grazing animals on pasture. The two most important tools for influencing the level of animal output under grazing are concentration of animals per acre (stocking rate) and the system of grazing management (which will be discussed in a subsequent article).

Grazing Pressure And Stocking Rate

The closeness to which a pasture is grazed is defined as grazing pressure. Grazing pressure is affected by both stocking rate (animals per acre) and available forage (pounds of forage per acre).

High grazing pressure causes close grazing and short pasture stubble. Animal performance is reduced because animals are forced to consume all portions of the pasture, including the poorer quality forage. Excessively high grazing pressure results in overgrazing.

Low grazing pressure refers to selective grazing, with unlimited forage available to animals (Figure 1). Animal production rates (gain per head per day, etc.) will usually be high at low grazing pressure. Very low grazing pressure, or under grazing, results in wasted forage and consequent poor animal production per acre.

An optimum grazing pressure is one in which available forage matches animal needs — this would be analogous to the quantity of forage offered daily to animals in confinement when rations are balanced. In order to maintain an optimum grazing pressure, it is important to adjust stocking rate so that available forage is maintained within an optimum range.

Available forage not only influences stocking rate, but can also affect dry matter intake. As the amount of forage decreases, intake per animal decreases. Reduction of available forage from 1000 to 500 pounds per acre has been shown to reduce average intake by almost 40 percent. For optimum grazing, available pasture should be maintained at 1,000 to 1,500 pounds of dry matter per acre. On average, a 3- to 4-inch bluegrass/white clover sward will have about 1,000 pounds of dry matter per acre. In tall grasses and legumes, this may be about 6 to 8 inches high.

Unfortunately, not all available forage in a pasture is utilized. Some of the forage will be trampled or fouled by urine or manure and remain uneaten. The amount of available forage which is consumed is called utilized forage. At high grazing pressures, animals are forced to consume more of the available forage resulting in a relatively high (greater than 80-percent) utilization rate. At low grazing pressures the animals will refuse to eat portions of the forage thus decreasing the utilization rate. As the length of the grazing period increases (lower grazing pressure), the percent utilization decreases.

Grazing pressure will not only affect animal performance, but will also affect the plant species in a pasture. Long periods of low grazing pressure commonly cause loss of legumes from the stand. At the other extreme, long periods of high grazing pressure can result in a temporary or long-term decrease in pasture production. High to excessive grazing pressure for long periods with little or no opportunity for selective grazing will also cause low animal intake and low gain rates.

Short periods of high grazing pressure can serve useful purposes. One to 2 weeks at high grazing pressure, three or four times through the grazing season, can help maintain legumes in the stand and utilize forage that might otherwise be wasted. It is important not to expose lactating cows or growing animals (calves, yearlings, and lambs) to long periods of high grazing pressure. Beef cows and ewes can tolerate high grazing pressure after breeding.

Ag Tech Day Set

GREENSBURG (Westmoreland Co.) — The Westmoreland Agricultural Fair, Penn State University, and Westmoreland County Cooperative Extension Service announce the second Southwest Pennsylvania Ag Technology Day on Thursday, August 26.

Last year, 23 commercial exhibitors participated and, even though it rained, farmers from Fayette, Indiana, Somerset, Washington, and Westmoreland counties attended. Both exhibitors and farmers thought it a worthy event.

Time for agribusiness exhibitors to make short presentations to the group assembled is allotted. Ag Technology Day is held in conjunction with the Westmoreland Fair, a short distance from the main fair activities. Farmers pay no admission to participate in Ag Technology Day.

Keep them simple, we did.

Groups Urge Congress To Dump Tax

WASHINGTON D.C. — Twenty-four agriculture groups have joined together to urge the U.S. Congress to exclude energy-based taxes from the federal budget.

In a letter dated July 8, the 24 national groups said that if a broad-based tax, such as a BTU tax is approved, "an agriculture exemption from a transportation fuels tax is vital." The group urged rejection of an increase in barge (inland waterways) taxes. They also asked that any fuel compliance reform actions needed to designate on-farm and off-farm use fuels "not come at the expense of farmers and ranchers," but that the reforms be easily administered, as outlined in the Senate version of the budget bill.

"Consideration of these positions does not spare farmers and ranchers from all negative aspects of budget reconciliation," said the letter. "Both the House and Senate packages reduce agriculture's direct income by over $3 billion. This is a 15 percent cut in fiscal 1994 alone, even though agriculture spending has declined 9 percent each year since 1985."

"Neither version of the budget bill represents the sort of long-term progressive policy we feel is vital for the future of our nation's farmers and ranchers, but the Senate version is far less painful in terms of income loss," said Barbara Webb, National Farmers Union's assistant director of government relations.

"The 24 groups signing this letter represent a broad spectrum of American agriculture, crossing commodity and geographical lines," said Webb, who assembled the coalition.

The House adopted the President's BTU tax in its budget bill, while the Senate version of the bill eliminated the controversial tax, replacing it with a gasoline and diesel sales tax with an exemption for on-farm use of these products. Representatives from the Senate and the House are expected to go into conference after July 13 to reconcile the differences in the two versions of the budget.

The groups signing the letter include American Agriculture Movement, American Sheep Industry Council, American Soybean Assoc., American Horse Council Cenex, Farmland Industries, Florida Sugar Cane League, Inc., National Assoc. of Wheat Growers, National Barley Growers Assoc., National Cattlemen's Assoc., National Corn Growers Assoc., National Cotton Council, National Council of Farmer Coops, National Family Farm Coalition, National Farmers Organization, National Farmers Union, National Grange, National Grain and Feed Assoc., National Pork Producers Council, National Sunflower Assoc., The Fertilizer Institute, U.S. Canola Assoc., U.S. Custom Harvesters, and U.S. Rice Producer Group.

Farmland Habitat Loss Threatens Wildlife

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The loss of brushy areas on Pennsylvania farms threatens wildlife populations, said a Penn State wildlife specialist.

"Wildlife habitat on Pennsylvania farms has dwindled in recent decades," said Dr. Margaret Brittingham, assistant professor of wildlife resources in the College of Agricultural Sciences. "In the past, farms were smaller and had many brushy areas that gave animals food and cover. As farming has intensified, we've lost many of those areas."

The situation has caused severe declines among Pennsylvania wildlife species. "Pheasants, for example, are very rare on farmland today," she said. "Cottontail rabbits and a variety of songbirds also are much rarer than they were."

Farmers who wish to provide or improve wildlife habitat should begin by looking at streams that cross their property. "Streams in agricultural areas are used heavily by wildlife," Brittingham said. "The area between the stream and the cropland, called the riparian zone, provides both food and cover close to the water."

Brittingham recently led a study which found that more than 80 different kinds of birds use riparian areas in the summertime. "These include birds like the great blue heron, mallard ducks, pheasants and woodcocks in areas close to young woods," she said. "Riparian areas also attract catbirds, song sparrows, red winged blackbirds, cardinals, robins, and more."

Keeping a zone of vegetation along streams also influences water quality. "That border of brush between the field and the stream is extremely important," she said. "If excess nutrients or chemicals come off the fields, the vegetation will help absorb them before they enter the stream. The vegetation also binds the soil and reduces erosion."

Giving livestock free access to streams is a key threat to these vegetation borders. "If you let them, cattle will walk along the bank, consuming the vegetation and eventually breaking the banks down. As the banks crumble and fall into the streams, you get high rates of erosion and sedimentation."

Farmers can protect riparian zones by fencing their streams to exclude livestock. "This doesn't mean that livestock can't go into the streams at all." Brittingham said. "You can provide stabilized stream crossings to take cattle over the stream and also have places where the cattle can go to the stream to drink. But by fencing the majority of the streambank, you protect that corridor of vegetation."

A variety of technical and financial assistance is available for farmers interested in fencing their streambanks. Brittingham has authored an extension circular, "Stream Bank Fencing: Green Banks, Clean Streams," which answers common questions about the practice.

MILK AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK

Hot, Humid Weather Could Mean Sheep Blowfly Problems

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Sheep producers in the northeastern United States should guard against blowfly infestations this summer, warns an animal scientist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"This summer's prolonged hot and humid weather is causing a high rate of blowfly infestations in breeding flocks and feeder lambs," said Dr. Clair Engle, associate professor of animal science. "Producers need to be aware of the causes, symptoms, prevention, and treatment of blowfly infestations."

Blowflies thrive in hot, wet environments and need warm, damp and dark areas with a good nutrient base to deposit and hatch their eggs. Sheep are perfect for the job. "Their woolen bodies make sheep especially susceptible, but blowflies attack other animals, too," Engle said.

"Sheep with dense fleeces, wrinkles, wool longer than an inch, heavily matted wool, or soiled breech wool are prime targets for blowfly to strike. Adult flies are strongly attracted to the slightest wound, so sheep with open wounds or infections from shearing, docking, castration, or ear tagging also are at high risk."

When a blowfly lays eggs in a sheep, larvae hatch within 24 hours and develop fully within six days, feeding on skin and wound secretions. The maggots then burrow into the skin or wound area to mature, eventually dropping to the ground where they pupate to adult blowflies.

No flock is immune from blowflies in hot and humid weather," Engle said. "Producers must watch their sheep and clean patches where the wool is wet, dense, and soiled with feces, urine, wound exudates, or other secretions."

The body parts most likely to be attacked are the breech, the crutch of ewes or lambs on feed, and the pizzle or sheath region on rams and wethers. Producers also should check the rump, the head at the base of the horns, and any skin or foot lacerations.

Infested breech areas are most common. "The first symptom usually is a spasmodic twitching of the tailhead region and frequent stomping of the hind feet, accompanied by general restlessness and failure to feed or associate with the flock," Engle said. "Closer examination will reveal the odor of decaying tissue. If the infestation isn't stopped, animals soon die from tissue destruction and toxins produced by the feeding larvae."

To treat a blowfly strike, the wool must be clipped to expose the infested area. "Farmers may find a wound teeming with larvae, which must be flushed out," Engle said. "At this point, call a veterinarian to treat and dress the wound."

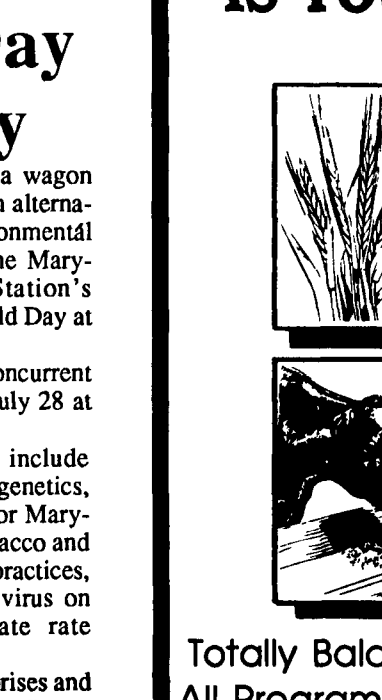
Dressing the wound properly enhances healing and provides fly protection. "Use an effective fly repellent to protect both the wound and the sheep," said Engle. "Don't let the affected area become sunburned, especially if the wound is on the upper body. Keep recovering sheep in a clean, well-ventilated, shaded facility with good fly control during the first week after treatment."

Applying certain insecticides to sheep in short fleece can reduce blowfly infestations during hot, wet weather. "Most sheep supply stores sell safe, effective sprays that provide protection for up to a month," Engle said. "Many fly control sprays recommended for the dairy industry also will work well for sheep. Local veterinarians can help find the best solution for your situation."

When using insecticides, always read and follow the directions and strictly observe any withdrawal requirements printed on the insecticide label.

Wilson Honored

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The northeast section of the American Society of Animal Science/American Dairy Science Association has presented Lowell L. Wilson its Distinguished Service Award at its recent meeting at the University of Maryland, College Park.



Lowell L. Wilson

The Distinguished Service Award recognizes Wilson, professor animal science in Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science, for his outstanding contributions to the field of animal science and animal agriculture.

Wilson joined Penn State in 1966 and has conducted a wide range of research, primarily in beef cattle breeding, beef and sheep management systems, forage utilization, growth promotants, and agricultural by-products as livestock feeds. More recently, he has conducted research with special-fed veal systems and public perceptions of animal production methods. He has developed educational and informational materials on farm animal care, use, and welfare and the role of agriculture in society.

Wilson presently serves as a director of the Pennsylvania Livestock Association, Pennsylvanians for the Responsible Use of Animals, Pennsylvania Beef Council, and the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association. He has served as an officer of Pennsylvania's Forage and Grassland Council, Beef Council, and Cattlemen's Association. Also, he is currently secretary of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association and technical adviser to the American Veal Association.

Wilson has authored or co-authored nearly 100 scientific papers, more than 450 technical and producer-oriented articles, and several monographs and book chapters. He has taught several undergraduate courses and supervised 43 masters and five doctoral degree candidates. He has made scientific presentations in Australia, Argentina, Canada, Columbia, Mexico, Chili, South Africa, Ireland, Spain, England, Venezuela, New Zealand, Ukraine, and Russia.

After receiving undergraduate and graduate degrees from The University of Wisconsin at Platteville and South Dakota State University, respectively, Wilson served as extension beef specialist at Purdue University in the mid-1960s, where he initiated electronic data processing of beef cattle records.

Ciba Seed Unit Expects Dynamic Growth

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Ciba Plant Protection's Seed Treatment Business Unit expects to add three new compounds to its product line within the next two to five years, according to Director Don Elliott.

Seed Treatment is Ciba's newest business unit and is part of its new Commercial Development Group, which was formed in January.

Ciba projects that the seed treatment industry should grow 8 to 10 percent per year during the next five years.

"Our new Seed Treatment Business Unit will allow us to concentrate on new opportunities in this area," said Commercial Development Vice President Ken Kemp.

Environmental benefits are one reason for the industry's growth, Elliott said. "Seed treatment is an excellent strategy for preventing and controlling disease or insect infestations without affecting the environment and with minimal personal exposure," he said.

Seed treatment products that are being developed by Ciba include:

- Dividend™, providing systemic disease control for cereal crops. It is particularly effective against seedling diseases in wheat. Plus, it offers control of dwarf bunt and early-season foliar diseases such as rust, Septoria and powdery mildew.
- Maxim™, providing broad spectrum disease control in potatoes, corn, peas, and beans.
- Trigard®, providing maggot control for onions.

Ciba's existing seed treatment products are Apron® for control of systemic downy mildew, seed rot and damping-off diseases, and Concep®, a seed dressing to protect grain or forage sorghum from the phytotoxic effects of metolachlor herbicide. Both have been marketed since the early 1980s.

Maryland Ag Field Day Wednesday

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Let a wagon become your classroom as you learn alternative agricultural enterprises, environmental issues, and Maryland tobacco at the Maryland Agriculture Experiment Station's (MAES) Southern Maryland Ag Field Day at the Upper Marlboro Facility.

The field day will feature two concurrent wagon tours, which will begin on July 28 at 8:30 a.m. and conclude at noon.

Stops along the tobacco tour include Maryland tobacco breeding and genetics, research on nitrogen quick testing for Maryland tobacco, new herbicides for tobacco and other field crops, aphid control practices, concerns about the PVY-N potato virus on Maryland tobacco, and phosphate rate studies.

The alternative agricultural enterprises and environmental tour will highlight cut flower production, row mixtures and force fields, resistant management tactics for colorado beetle control, new management tools for controlling cucumber beetle and spread of bacterial wilt, fencing alternative for intensive grazing, environmental impact of alternative pesticide formulation and tillage practices, and research and extension effort involving water quality.

Veterinary Science
Penn State

Producers and veterinarians are often stymied in understanding why one farm is susceptible to certain diseases while neighboring farms are not.

Differences in geography, animal genetics, and farm management are the most likely reasons why some farms are affected and others are disease-free.

Pseudorabies is a disease that has plagued Pennsylvania swine producers for many years, and the way it spreads between farms is still a mystery. Although some farm infections can be traced to animal movement, most infections cannot be explained.

The most common explanation for a new herd infection is unknown. Dr. Bill Sischo, Ms. Heather Norman, and Ms. Carol Burns, from Penn States Department of Veterinary Science, are interested in trying to find answers to the pseudorabies mystery.

Beginning in late July, approximately 700 managers and owners of swine herds will receive a mail survey. The survey will ask questions about pseudorabies vaccination programs, herd biosecurity, animal movement, farm management, and location. There will be approximately 30 questions and should take less than 15 minutes to fill out.

Importantly, all the information on this questionnaire will be confidential. For this survey to be successful, Penn State personnel will need your cooperation in answering the question which indicates whether or not you've been affected with pseudorabies.

The information from this survey will be combined with information that has already been collected by Drs. Amy Nesselrodt and Paul Pitcher from USDA. These data should add to the pseudorabies eradication effect in Pennsylvania and help identify the management schemes that will be most helpful in stopping the spread of pseudorabies in Pennsylvania.

Pseudorabies Will Be Eradicated By 1999, Says USDA

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — By June 1999, the nation will achieve the goal of eradicating swine pseudorabies, a costly acute viral disease, if current trends continue a federal health official reported at the 130th annual convention of the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA), July 17-21, at the Minneapolis Convention Center.

"For the first time ever, the total number of swine herds infected with pseudorabies has started to drop," said Joseph F. Annelli, M.S., D.V.M., of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, Hyattsville, Md.

Annelli attributed the success of the fight against pseudorabies to clean up plans started as part of a cooperative effort of the swine industry, state, and federal governments to eradicate the disease by the year 2000.

For the past three years, the prevalence of swine pseudorabies has been declining in most states. "The reason for these trends is that more and more herds are on clean up plans," Dr. Annelli said.

Adult infected swine can become virus carriers without showing any outward signs of pseudorabies and may pass the disease through the herd. Infected sows are likely to abort fetuses or produce stillborn or weak litters. Infected baby pigs are usually severely ill and often die.

In addition, pseudorabies suppresses the animal's immune system, increasing the infected pig's susceptibility to other diseases, particularly respiratory diseases such as pneumonia.

The U.S. swine industry spends $21 million annually on vaccines for pseudorabies. While the vaccine does not cure the disease, it limits the transmission of virus within the herd and prevents clinical signs. However, producers with infected herds still suffer additional, incalculable losses due to animals' increased susceptibility to respiratory diseases.

Achievement of all the technological needs to complete the pseudorabies eradication process will be feasible, "if we have the will to do it," George W. Bera., D.V.M., of Iowa State University, Ames, IA, said in a separate presentation.

These technological needs, according to Dr. Beran, include:

- Cost-effective surveillance in high density swine population states.
- Development of effective national slaughter surveillance.
- Effective swine identification and traceback.
- Laboratory techniques to detect recombinant vaccine — field virus strains.
- Control of the reservoir in feral (wild) swine.

Massey Ferguson Leads Tractor Sales

NORCROSS, Ga. — Last year's industry results confirm Massey Ferguson continued as the best-selling tractor brand in western world markets.

"This is the 30th consecutive year Massey Ferguson has earned this leadership position," said Graeme Leonard, vice president, Massey Ferguson North American Operations, "and preliminary figures for last year show the company maintained its lead in world tractor sales, outstripping its nearest rival by more than 40 percent."

In a harsh global environment of shrinking markets and intensified competition in 1992, total industry sales of tractors in the world outside the former USSR and Eastern Europe territories fell about 2.5 percent from 1991 levels. By contrast, Massey Ferguson succeeded in offsetting the industry decline, increasing its sales approximately 6.5 percent.

In 1993, Massey Ferguson is also marking the 75th anniversary of the start of its tractor production; the 60th anniversary of Harry Ferguson's first prototype Ferguson System tractor (now in the Science Museum, London); and the 40th anniversary of the merger between Harry Ferguson and Massey-Harris to form the basis of the present-day Massey Ferguson group.

"With the new 606 Brush Chipper, anyone with a tractor can reduce brush and limbs (up to 6 inches in diameter) down to mulch-size chips for bedding, erosion control, and landscaping," said Vermeer division manager Larry McCarthy.

Disc-Style Brush Chipper Cuts Cleanup Cost

PELLA, Iowa — An economical PTO-driven disc-style brush chipper designed to reduce the time, cost and labor of handling brush and wood materials reduction has recently been introduced by Vermeer Manufacturing Company.

"With the new 606 Brush Chipper, anyone with a tractor can reduce brush and limbs (Up to 6 inches in diameter) down to mulch-size chips for bedding, erosion control, and landscaping," said Vermeer division manager Larry McCarthy. "It's ideal for cleaning up fence rows, tree farms, orchards, and timberland, and it's an excellent little profitmaker for the rural or suburban entrepreneur looking for extra income without investing in a large-scale chipper."

The 606 runs off the power take-off of the tractor and features hydraulic feed for smooth, controlled brush feeding action. A self-feeding roller drags brush material into a housing that contains the chipper's cutting disc. Cutting wheel speed is 1645 at 540 RPM on the PTO.

The hydraulics are controlled by an easy access manual feed control bar which starts, stops, or reverses the feed process. Near waist-high feed table height reduces unnecessary stooping or bending and provides excellent leverage when loading heavy limbs. A two-way discharge chute directs chips to either side of the unit, away from the operator area. It also comes equipped with a pivoting hood that allows you to more accurately "place" chips into a truck or disperse them into piles on the ground.

In order to maintain reasonably safe distances between the operator and the feed roller, the end of the feed table measures 60 inches to the pinch point of the roller. (Standard distance on most competitive chippers is 36 inches or less.) For an extra measure of protection, the cutting disc cover is also bolted down to help prevent "early" entry before the cutting disc has time to stop. A lock pin holds the disc when replacing cutting knives.

Clean uncluttered design makes the units easy to service and maintain. The discharge chute and protective housing of the cutting disc pivot open for unobstructed access when repairing or replacing cutting knives.

ABS Signs Agreement

DEFOREST, Wis. — ABS announced the signing of a five-year exclusive marketing contract with the Alcide Corporation of Norwalk, Conn.

This contract, effective July 1, 1993, secures a five-year marketing agreement for all current Alcide products as well as a first right of refusal for any new external udder care products developed by Alcide. The agreement covers the sales and promotion of Alcide products by ABS in all of North America as well as selected countries around the world.

"The partnership between ABS and Alcide signifies the confidence ABS has in this family of mastitis prevention products as well as Alcide's confidence in the ABS Representative concept," said Jim Winter, ABS manager, animal product development. "ABS has been able to grow this product line each year for the last six years, and the dairy producers using the product have been extremely pleased with the results they are receiving. It is a very strong element of our marketing program here at ABS."

ABS first began working with the Alcide Corporation in 1987 with the introduction of their barrier teat dip UDDERgold. ABS markets five Alcide products, including UDDERgold barrier teat dip, PRE-GOLD germicidal pre-milking teat dip, 4XLA germicidal pre- and post-milking teat dip, silverQUICK udder wash, and LD udder wash. These products have been proven to be environmentally safe, highly effective, and economically beneficial for dairy producers.

Alcide Corporation develops and manufactures unique disinfecting systems based upon its patented technology.

Managers Continue Training

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — Territorial sales managers from Gro-Mor Plant Food Company met recently in York and Lebanon counties to continue training for the certified crop advisors examination, which will be held later this summer.

The training sessions focused on the science of crop protection, which is only a part of the subject material that will be covered on the exam. Certified Crop Advisor status will be awarded to those individuals who have demonstrated their knowledge of the entire scope of professional crop production and have a formal education combined with years of field experience.

Gro-Mor Plant Food Company is participating in this certification process to continue its tradition of employing fully qualified and highly trained sales and support staff to best serve the farmers.

Following the classroom training session, the sales managers at the York location visited a vegetable farm, "J-Mar Farms," located on South George Street, where they toured the farm to observe intensive sweet corn, vegetable, and strawberry production.

Following the classroom training session in Lebanon County, the sales managers visited the Risser/Marvel vegetable farm in Palmyra to observe intensive sweet corn and vegetable production. Gro-Mor's liquid fertilizer has been used on this farm with good success.

Gro-Mor's liquid fertilizer has been used on this farm with success for several years since the company offers a selection of unique starter and foliar fertilizers designed to maximize plant yields in harmony with the environment.

These products complement the soil's existing fertility level through a regular soil testing program conducted by the sales representative. The use of highly available nutrients in a true-solution that is not corrosive and near neutral in pH benefits the farmer and his crops, and is safe to handle.

Estrada Promoted At White Oak Mills

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — White Oak Mills, a rapidly growing supplier of swine, dairy and beef feeds, has announced the promotion of Jorge Mario Estrada to the position of director of dairy nutrition.

Estrada now has full responsibility of dairy nutrition for the company, which includes providing dairy nutrition technical support to dairy sales staff and customers, computer-ration balancing and nutritional recommendations, as well as product development and research.

He previously served as dairy nutrition specialist for the company.

A 1990 graduate of Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan., Estrada has a bachelor's in dairy science and a master's degree in ruminant nutrition. Honors included a scholarship for his undergraduate studies by the German Foundation for Development and a graduate research assistantship for his graduate studies at Kansas State University. Also, he attended a three-year program at the Pan-American School of Agriculture in Honduras which allowed him to gain on-the-job training experience in most aspects of agriculture and animal science.

Fluent in Spanish, he is a member of the American Dairy Science Association, Maryland Holstein Association, and Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association. Estrada joined White Oak Mills in December 1990.

Frame depth of the Brillion Super Soil Builder has been increased by 12 inches to a lenth of 139 inches, making it one of the deepest coulter chisel frames available. "This simple modication to the frame results in improved performance in extremely heavy residue," said Mike Irish, Brillion sales manager.

Deeper Frame For Better Flow

BRILLION, Wis. — Frame depth of the Brillion Super Soil Builder has been increased by 12 inches to a length of 139 inches, making it one of the deepest coulter chisel frames available. The expanded frame increased the soil builder's ability to handle large amounts of residue.

"This simple modification to the frame results in improved performance in extremely heavy residue," said Mike Irish, Brillion sales manager.

This is especially important as more emphasis is placed on conservation tillage. Our new stretched soil builder can help growers meet their conservation compliance goals. The coulter gangs up front cut up stalks and residue. Three ranks of rugged chisel shanks follow, ripping through plow sole as deep as 12 inches to incorporate residue into the soil and promote root growth.

The Super Soil Builder also helps prevent wind and water erosion by leaving residue on the surface of the soil. The amount of residue remaining on the surface is determined by the style of chisel point used. Several styles of points are available for the soil builder.

The new, longer frame is available on the Super Soil Builder 7 to 13 shank models. Additional features of the Super Soil Builder include hydraulically adjusted front coulters with an 8.5-inch depth control range that allows the operator to raise the coulters completely out of the ground, a self-leveling frame design, and walking tandem wheels.

Tech Course Set

ALFRED, N.Y. — This year's "Agriculture Tech Prep 2000" summer course for college and high school educators is scheduled for the campus of Alfred State College of Technology July 26-30.

That's the word from Morris C. Mead, assistant professor in the college's Agriculture and Horticulture Department, who is Ag Tech Prep (ATP) coordinator for Alfred State.

Mead describes the offering as "one of the most ambitious technical programs ever attempted at the state level.

"It targets all school districts in the state with the common message that there are more opportunities in agriculture-related businesses and industries than most of us could possibly imagine," he said.

The specific audience is the middle 50 percent of high school students, those who might be thinking of college but might not have a clear concept of what it is they want out of higher education, Mead noted.

The ATP 2000 project is funded with a $250,000 five-year grant to establish a statewide agriculture curriculum that includes mathematics, science, communications, and the technologies for many students who might otherwise not consider an ag-related career.

New York State is the only state in the nation with an Ag Tech Prep program, Mead said.

How does it work?

The project will create a new curriculum choice for high school juniors and seniors to prepare them for the next step — a two-year, agriculture-related program at one of the state's colleges of technology.

"Students who successfully complete the high school courses would be accepted at the College of Technology at Alfred (Alfred State) and at the Colleges of Agriculture and Technology at Morrisville and Cobleskill," Mead said. "The programs they select at the college level would pick up where the high schools left off."

Involved with the five-year project, along with the three colleges, are the following 12 pilot schools where the program will be tested starting this fall:

- Cuba-Rushford Central School, Fillmore Central School, Friendship Central School, and Pioneer Central School (Yorkshire) in the western portion of the state.
- Lowville Central School, Madison-Oneida BOCES, St. Johnsville (Montgomery County) Central School, and Vernon-Verona-Sherrill Central School in the central region.
- And, Greenville Central Junior-Senior High School (Greene County), John Bowne High School (New York City), Putnam/Northern Westchester BOCES (Yorktown Heights), and Tri-Valley Central School, Grahamsville (Sullivan County), in the eastern region.

Teachers from the 12 school systems spent the academic year field testing educational materials for the project. Writing teams have been formed to review materials and suggest changes or additions.

Courses under consideration include environmental science, plant and animal science, mechanization systems and structures, managing an agricultural enterprise, aquaculture, and food science.

For more information, the following campus coordinators may be contacted: College of Technology at Alfred, Professor Morris Mead (607) 587-4525; College of Agriculture and Technology at Morrisville, Professor James VanRiper, (315) 684-6240; and College of Agriculture and Technology at Cobleskill, Professor John Tyron, (518) 234-5571.

Safety Vital Around Farm Ponds, Pools

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Farm ponds provide water for firefighting, irrigation, and livestock. During summer, they may even be used for swimming.

If you use a pond or a swimming pool for recreation on your farm, make sure it is safe, said a safety expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Water safety is particularly important if you have children on your farm," said Dr. Dennis Murphy, professor of agricultural engineering. "According to the National Safety Council, drowning is the second leading cause of death in children and youths aged one to 24."

Children under four are at especially high risk. "It takes just an inch of water and a few moments without supervision for a child to drown," Murphy said. "Drowning generally is silent, without a cry for help or a splash to alert adults. It easily can happen in a bathtub, kiddie pool, or your farm pond."

Children always need adult supervision near water. "Consider putting a fence around your pond or pool to keep children from entering the water without adult supervision," Murphy said. "All children and non-swimmers should wear personal flotation devices at all times."

Encourage your children to learn to swim. "You can enroll children over age three in swimming lessons taught by qualified instructors," Murphy said. "But keep in mind that lessons don't make your child 'drown-proof.'"

Before letting people swim in your pond, mark safe swimming areas and set up a rescue station. "Keep a strong, lightweight pole 10 to 12 feet long and a ring or tube with a line attached in the pool or pond area at all times," Murphy said. "Also keep a list of first-aid procedures and where to get help in case of an emergency."

Near-drownings are more common than drownings, so preparing for the worst could save a life. "In a crsis situation, basic emergency medical procedures can help until emergency personnel arrive," Murphy said. "It's a good idea to learn CPR and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation if people swim on your property."

Murphy notes that ano all farm ponds are suitable for recreation. "Never swim in water shared by livestock or polluted by runoff containing chemicals or animal waste," Murphy said. "Avoid stagnant and algae-filled water, since some algae produce toxins that can cause severe illness and even death. Stay away from ponds during storms and when spillways are flowing."

More information about farm safety is available from the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county.

State's Equine Industry Economically Important

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Results of research conducted by Penn State University and the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service were recently published in a report titled "The Pennsylvania Equine Industry Profile."

The report indicates that the commonwealth's equine industry (including horses, mules, and other equine species and hybrids) is a large, diverse, and economically important enterprise, ranking equine values second only to dairy cattle among all agricultural commodities.

The industry positively contributes to the quality of life in Pennsylvania. For example, thousands of youth, families, and volunteers participate in organized horse programs across the state. Horses provide a powerful and stimulating tool for educating and developing young people. Horses are also increasingly used to provide therapy for persons with disabilities through therapeutic riding and driving activities.

Total equine inventory in Pennsylvania, as of June 1, 1990, was 170,000 head, valued at $620 million. The average value per head was highest for warmbloods at $12,140, followed by standardbreds at $10,100, and thoroughbreds at $9,400. Chester County led the state in total equine value, at more than $110 million.

The economic value of the equine industry in Pennsylvania is great. Total value of equine-related land, fencing, and facilities was more than $2.9 billion in 1990, with an additional $370 million inventory of equine-related equipment and supplies. Taxes paid by equine owners totaled more than $15 million.

Pennsylvania equine owners made a total of approximately $428 million in equine-related expenditures in 1990. The largest were for feed at more than $76 million and equipment at more than $61 million. On average, these owners spent $2,882 per animal, including $465 for feed and $402 for equipment. Approximately 270,000 tons of hay were purchased for equine use, with an average of 1.6 tons per animal.

A total of 44,000 individuals, partnerships, and others owned equine animals in 1990, including 8,800 commercial operations used primarily for breeding, boarding, competition, and showing. This commercial sector accounted for more than 60 percent of equine-related expenditures. More than 5,000 or 60 percent were breeding operations, with 20,400 broodmares and 4,000 stallions.

Approximately 37,300 owners kept their horses on owned, rented, or leased land across the commonwealth, with 520,000 acres set aside for equine use. Approximately 6,300 owners maintained their animals in a boarding stable or other facility.

The majority of equine owners in Pennsylvania used some 71,000 horses for pleasure or sport, including pleasure riding, hunting, trail riding, youth programs, and other recreational activities. About 43,400 equine animals were used for work, teaching, or other uses statewide, representing 25 percent of the total inventory. This large number is attributed primarily to the large Amish population in the state.

The largest numbers of equine animals were concentrated in the southeast and southwest regions of Pennsylvania. The southeast had the highest population with 48,800 head, including Berks, Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Lancaster, Lebanon, Montgomery, and Philadelphia counties. The southwest, including Allegheny, Fayette, Greene, Somerset, Washington, and Westmoreland counties, was second highest with 23,900. Adams, Bedford, Cumberland, Franklin, Fulton and York counties were third with 22,500.

The leading five counties in equine numbers were Lancaster with 17,300; Chester, 14,600; Washington, 9,200; York, 7,800; and Westmoreland, 5,700. The breed with the highest number of horses was the Quarter Horse with 27,700, followed by 18,200 standardbreds, 17,400 draft breeds, and 17,100 ponies.

Pennsylvania employed 7,500 paid residents on equine farms. Labor services paid in non-cash form, such as in exchange for riding lessons totaled nearly $2 million. Although they were not included in this survey, equine-related professionals — such as veterinarians, trainers, tack and feed representatives, and other equine support personnel — comprise many more employment opportunities in Pennsylvania.

Ten percent of the state's horse owners receive 76 percent to 100 percent of their income from equine activities. Most horse owners in Pennsylvania are in the middle- to low-income category, with nearly half reporting a total gross income for household or operation of $20,000 to $49,000 and 15 percent making less than $20,000. Only 26 percent of horse owners made incomes over $50,000.

The results of this project represent a conservative estimate of the magnitude of the economic impact of the equine industry in Pennsylvania. Examination of the report leaves no doubt that the industry is important to the state's economy, providing employment, generating tax dollars, and building assets.

For more information on the horse industry in Pennsylvania, contact your local cooperative extension office. Limited quantities of the report are available from the Publications Distribution Center, Penn State College of Agriculture Sciences, 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 865-6713.

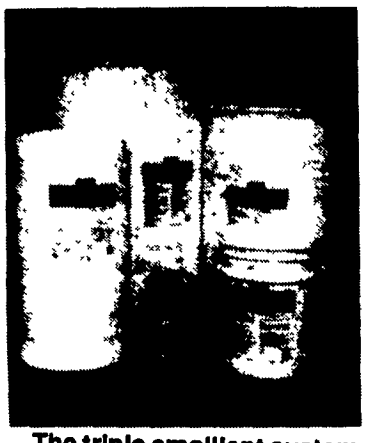
Babson Introduces Triple Conditioning Teat Dip

NAPERVILLE, Ill. — Teat Kote 10/III™, a post-milking teat dip introduced by Babson Bros. Co., combines an exclusive triple emollient system with the strength of a 1 percent iodine solution for premium mastitis prevention.

While a high iodine content (10,000 ppm) makes Teat Kote 10/III an effective mastitis-fighter, its triple emollient system decreases the potential for chapping and irritation. Unlike most post-dips that contain only one emollient, Teat Kote 10/III uses a blend of lanolin, glycerin and a special film-forming agent to improve mastitis protection. The thick formula coats teats to ensure maximum coverage and helps create a protective layer against bacteria and weather.

"We took our very popular product, Teat Kote, and added special emollients and thickening agents in response to the needs of producers battling either cold and windy or arid conditions," said Brian Wilkins, marketing and business development manager, Babson Bros. Co. Chemical Division.

In university studies consistent with National Mastitis Council (NMC) protocols, Teat Kote 10/III was proven highly effective against the most prevalent mastitis-causing bacteria, Streptococcus agalactiae and Staphylococcus aureus. Teat Kote 10/III reduced the number of new Streptococcus agalactiae infections by more than 90 percent in experimental challenge studies at Cornell University.



The triple emollient system in Surge's Teat Kote 10/III teat dip (pictured above) helps eliminate chapping and irritation.

The powerful germicidal activity of Teat Kote 10/III is available in a ready-to-use, stable formulation that ensures consistent quality in each dip. SURGE® dealers supply Teat Kote 10/III in a variety of quantities ranging from one gallon to 55 gallons.

Because no industry-wide standardized testing is required for teat dips, Babson Bros. Co. encourages producers to contact manufacturers for testing information. To request information on Teat Kote 10/III, contact your SURGE dealer or write to Babson Bros. Co., 1354 Enterprise Drive, Romeoville, IL 60441.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds
BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING
A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that
- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

HIGH TENSILE FENCE...THE FARMER'S BEST INVESTMENT
The Beaver Fence Systems are tops! We installed 1 mile of their fence on our farm on Feb. 3, 1993, full size post, 3-1/2 feet deep, excellent braces. We used 5 strand (2 elec.) high tensil, all in place in just 8-1/2 hours! The fence is as straight as an arrow-excellent equipment-very efficient work!

"I am a hard man to convince, but after I saw how Beaver built the fence, I'm ready to put my digging iron away," says David W. Brubaker of Honey Grove Acres, RD1, Box 629 Honey Grove, PA 17035

USDA Announces Penn State Grants

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Officials from the U.S. Department of Agriculture traveled to Penn State's University Park Campus recently to announce the 1993 challenge and fellowship grants awarded by the USDA Office of Higher Education programs.

The announcement came during the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges Academic Programs Section (APS) summer work conference, held July 11-14 and hosted by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. The conference unites the deans of land-grant colleges of agriculture to discuss academic issues and share information about new educational programs.

"It's an honor to have this announcement made at Penn State," said Dr. James Mortensen, associate dean for resident education in the university's College of Agricultural Sciences and chair of the APS summer work conference.

On behalf of Secretary of Agriculture Mike Epsy, Dr. W. Jay Jackman, grants program specialist, and Dr. Jeffrey Gilmore, grants program manager for USDA, announced the recipients of 31 Food and Agricultural Sciences National Needs Graduate Fellowships Program grants and 23 Higher Education Challenge Program grants.

Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences received a National Needs Graduate Fellowships Program grant. The award will support two graduate fellows working with Dr. Hector Flores, associate professor of plant pathology, on plant biotechnology projects.

Previous National Needs Graduate Fellowships grants to Penn State researchers have supported 11 doctoral and 6 master's degree students.

Since 1984, the Food and Agricultural Sciences National Needs Graduate Fellowships Program has encouraged outstanding students to pursue graduate degrees in critical areas of food and agricultural science.

The effort has supported the graduate programs of more than 650 students nationwide in areas such as plant and animal biotechnology, human nutrition, agricultural marketing and management, water science, and agricultural engineering.

To date, 96 projects have been supported by the program, including a 1990 Penn State project to develop an introductory food science course for nationwide satellite distribution.

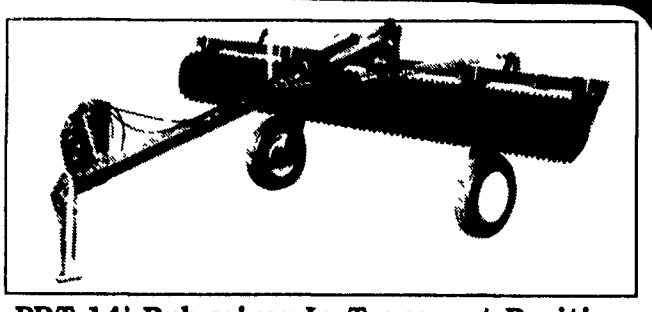
Brillion Pulverizers crush clods and firm the soil for better contact between seeds and soil.



PDT-14' Pulverizer In Transport Position
This concept of transport is new to the industry. Machine weight is rotated over the tires for transport which considerably reduces the drawbar hitch weight.

Both model pulverizers offer choice of 20" ductile iron wheel (which carries a 5-year limited warranty), 20" notched rollers, 20" crowfoot, 18" smooth, 16" notched or 15" smooth wheels with sprockets.

Partnership Helps Save Farmland

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The Chester County board of commissioners and the county Ag Land Preservation board have joined forces with the Brandywine Conservancy to better coordinate farmland preservation efforts in the Octorara and Oxford regions of Chester County.

Commissioners' Chairman Karen L. Martynick said the county and the conservancy recently signed an agreement formalizing communication channels and establishing a relationship of mutual cooperation toward the goal of preserving Chester County's farmland. Commissioner Martynick said the partnership approach will provide benefits the farmers as well as the cause.

"This agreement creates a greater potential for successful farmland preservation activities in the areas west of Route 41. We will be sharing information and resources which will help us as organizations committed to preserving farmland. It will also help the area's farmers as they make decisions about their futures and the options available to them," Martynick said.

County officials indicated that the Memorandum of Understanding sets out general areas of cooperation between the county and the conservancy including regular communication regarding preservation activities in the areas west of Route 41, referrals to the organizations respective programs when appropriate, mutual assistance to landowners in establishing agricultural security areas, and the dissemination of information on estate planning and land preservation options.

Commissioner Joseph J. Kenna said the agreement also provides for greater communication with landowners and local officials.

According to Commissioner Andrew E. Dinniman, the agreement opens the door for some exciting future projects.

"We have now set the stage for the potential to implement cooperative farmland preservation projects in the future. By establishing a strong working partnership now, we will be ready to move swiftly when that time comes," said Dinniman.

RESPIRATORY PROTECTION FOR POULTRY WORKERS

Dennis J. Murphy
Professor Of Agricultural And Biological Engineering

A wide variety of hazards can be found lurking on most poultry farms. Many of these hazards are common to other farm operations as well. For instance, tractor and machinery hazards, noise, and electrical and fire hazards are fairly typical.

Another broadly based hazard, found particularly in many poultry houses, is hazardous respirable dust. Respirable dusts are the microscopic-sized organic dust particles that come from poultry feathers, feed, and manure.

The most typical symptoms include a scratchy throat, a constant cough, sputum or phlegm, and a running nose. Poultry dust can affect any exposed person within a short period of time, and in extreme cases have forced farm workers to stay out of poultry buildings and to seek other work.

Response to poultry dust varies from person to person, may affect any part of the respiratory tract, and may include inflammatory, toxic, or allergic processes. Ignoring the symptoms caused by inhaling poultry dust can lead to long-term respiratory problems and diseases such as acute or chronic bronchitis, occupational asthma, a systemic influenza like reaction, or chronic sinusitis.

Good management practices can help to minimize dust generation in poultry houses, but it isn't practical to reduce all respirable dust. To reduce the harmful effects of respirable dust, approved respiratory protection should be worn. The type of respirator appropriate for use in poultry houses is referred to as an air-purifying respirator. The person breathes through a filtering medium that traps respirable dust. Because the wearer must pull air through the filter, all air-purifying respirators put added stress on the lungs. For this reason, if you suffer or suspect that you suffer from respiratory problems such as asthma, lung, or cardiovascular disease, check with a doctor to make sure you are able to wear one.

There are three primary types of air-purifying respirators appropriate for use in poultry houses. The least expensive models are commonly called dust/mist respirators. This is the least effective model for filtering respirable dust because the respirator does not seal tightly against the wearer's face, and considerable amounts of dust may leak into the respirator and be breathed in. They are usually identifiable by their two thin elastic bands and are priced from $1 to $5.

The second type of air-purifying respirator is the cartridge respirator. This respirator normally comes in different sizes, has a rubber face piece, adjustable elastic straps, and can be purchased with dust/mists cartridges only or in combination with chemical vapor cartridges. When purchased in combination, the dust/mists protection usually comes as a prefilter or the chemical cartridge filter. Both half-mask and full-face models are available. Prices range widely, from about $25 for a disposable half-mask to $150 for reusable full-face piece models. The cartridge respirator, if fitted properly, can provide substantial protection for most wearers.

The third type of air-purifying respirator is named the powered air-purifying respirator (PAPR). This type respirator utilizes a motorized blower that forces air through the filtering medium. It makes breathing easier for the wearer, so this type device might be recommended by a doctor for someone with a minor respiratory or cardiovascular ailment. They tend to be cooler, too, because of a constant stream of air over the wearer's face. The blower is usually powered by a rechargeable battery pack strapped onto the wearer's waist. Some PAPRs are capable of filtering out nearly all harmful respirable particles, and may be the only type of respirator that provides satisfactory protection. This situation may occur when early symptoms of respiratory distress are ignored. PAPRs range in price from about $200 to $800.

Whichever specific type of air-purifying respirator is appropriate for your individual situation, be sure that the respirator is a NIOSH- or MSHA-approved respirator. All approved respirators are marked with a "TC" number and the initials "NIOSH" or "MSHA" somewhere on the respirator. The common nuisance dust mask, marked by a single elastic strap, and often sold by the boxfull, is not an approved respirator and will not have a "TC" number. This type of dust mask is not effective at filtering respirable dust.

Dairy Software Easier To Use

ELK GROVE VILLAGE, Ill. — The newest Dairy Plan includes numerous updates of suggestions from dairy users as to what is needed.

Dairy Plain Herd Management Only feed/breed/milk management software packages is user friendly, and data can be entered for multiple cows without switching screens. Using Dairy Plan, a dairy farmer can make detailed decisions concerning his herd or an individual cow for the improvement of the dairy's bottom line.

This simple to use computer software program allows dairy farmers to design their own reports to suit their needs. A vet report can be scheduled to be printed just before the veterinarian arrives.

Each cow has her own calendar to signal the dairy farmer to check for heat, when to breed, and when to dry. This is part of the vet section and provides part of the comprehensive list for each cow, including breeding information, sickness, and vet examinations.

Dairy Plan allows for detailed cow data such as barn numbers, test dry milk totals, lactation totals and projections, feed rations and more. Graphs are included for individual lactation curves for milk, fat, protein, SCC, and feed. Other graphs include group production graphs, cows due to calve, vet analysis, and breeding summaries.

Dairy Plan is capable of interfacing with other computer programs, such as DHIA centers to upload or download barn sheets, consistency checks, and test results. In addition the vet, feed company, any other interested party can keep track of a dairy's cows through the use of a modern.

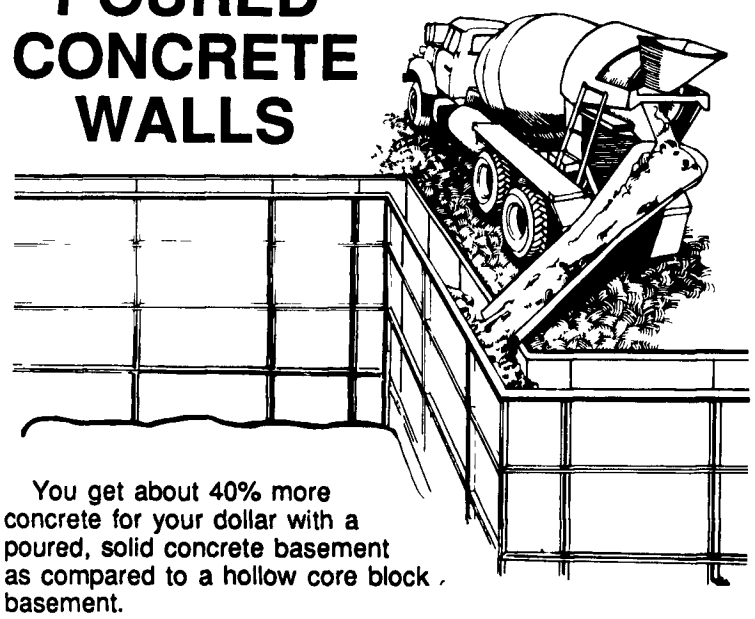
POURED SOLID CONCRETE

STORAGE SYSTEM SPECIALISTS

START WITH THE BEST!

POURED CONCRETE WALLS



You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement.

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs. more per cubic foot! Far denser. What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic ... there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration.

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced:

Solid Concrete For:

- Manure Pit Walls
- Hog House Walls
- Barnyard Walls
- Chicken House Walls

New Rabies Requirement At The Fair

The New York State Fair has instituted a new vaccination requirement for the exhibition of many livestock in 1993.

All dairy cattle, beef cattle, sheep and horses exhibited at The New York State Fair this year must first be vaccinated for rabies or the animal will not be accepted. These species of livestock must be vaccinated at least 21 days before the opening day of the fair, which is August 26. To be exhibited at the State Fair, the animals must be vaccinated no later than August 4, or the animals will not be accepted.

Proof will be required that all dairy and beef animals, sheep, or horses have been vaccinated before they will be allowed to enter the grounds. Exhibitors should have their veterinarian add a statement to the health certificate stating that the animal has been immunized against rabies. The statement should include the date of immunization and state the type of vaccine used.

Owners of horses should ask their veterinarian to provide a statement that the horse has been vaccinated for rabies. The statement should include the date of vaccination, the type of vaccine used, and the name of the horse. Attaching a photocopy of the Coggins test certificate will provide positive identification of the animal. Horses from out-of-state may have the veterinarian add this information to the intra-state health certificate.

The requirement applies only to dairy cattle, beef cattle, sheep and horses, in both open and 4-H classes. It does not apply to hogs, goats, llamas, or other types of livestock.

For additional information, contact Bill Quinn or Sue Reynolds at the New York State Fairgrounds, (315) 487-7711.

Changes Threaten To Cause Resurgence Of Cattle TB

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Recent changes in the U.S. livestock industry threaten to reverse tremendous gains made in the nearly 80-year struggle to eradicate tuberculosis (TB) from the nation's livestock, reported Lonnie J. King, D.V.M., M.S., at the 130th annual meeting of the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA).

"The National Bovine TB Eradication Program seemed to be on the verge of total success only a few years ago," said Dr. King, acting administrator for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS). "But in the 1990s, the tuberculosis-free status of two states has been revoked after outbreaks of TB were reported, and a Canadian outbreak of bovine tuberculosis was traced back to U.S. sources."

In 1991, TB was discovered in three captive deer and elk herds in New York, one of which contained infected dairy cattle as well, prompting revocation of that state's tuberculosis-free status. A similar incident in Pennsylvania resulted in revocation of that state's tuberculosis-free status. In 1990, an outbreak of TB in elk on a game ranch in Alberta, Canada, was traced to animals exported from the U.S.

According to Dr. King, the problem stems from an overall decline in concern about the disease combined with several other factors, including the growing popularity of deer and elk farming, ineffective testing methods that may misdiagnose the disease, large importations of Mexican steer herds with higher levels of TB, and the advent of large dairies with dense herd populations, promoting spread of the diseases.

In a separate presentation, Michael Miller, D.V.M., Ph.D., of the Colorado Division of Wildlife, Ft. Collins. warned that rising levels of TB in captive deer and elk will negatively impact the U.S. livestock industry in several ways. Over the last decade, TB has been diagnosed in captive deer and elk in at least 14 different states, and the recent outbreak among U.S. game ranches has affected the tuberculosis-free status of some states.

Since the discovery that U.S. imports caused the Alberta TB outbreak, Canada will no longer accept U.S. exports of deer or elk raised on game ranches. Cattle exports could also be affected if current trends continue. "Moreover, if TB becomes established in wild deer and elk populations through game ranches or other sources, the goal of national eradication will become virtually unachievable," Miller said.

"The greatest long-term threat to U.S. TB eradiication comes from captive elk and deer on game ranches and game farms," he said. "The Canadians have just spent over $15 million to eradicate the recent outbreak and it has nearly broken them. If we don't start regulating the game ranch industry now, TB will come back to haunt us in a few years."

In recent years, the farming of deer and elk has burgeoned into an industry represented in every U.S. state. Cases of TB have been reported on several game farms, which often exist in conjunction with livestock operations or nearby. The USDA's TB eradication program regulates cattle and bison but not farm-raised elk and deer.

TB was the most important infectious disease of U.S. livestock in the early 1900s. It was responsible for dramatic drops in production, animal deaths, and the economic ruin of many producers. It infected from five to ten percent of dairy cattle and could be transmitted to people in milk, creating a serious human health threat.

Today, all milk is pasteurized to kill TB bacteria and prevent transmission of the disease to human beings. It cannot be transmitted to human beings through eating meat.

TB may be caused by similar human and bovine strains of bacteria. Cases of human TB today result from infection with the human bacterium, rather than through animal transmission. The reported rise in human TB is due to a variety of factors, unrelated to the livestock industry.

"There hasn't been a case of cattle TB in humans in this country in over a decade," King said.

Two related presentations addressed the need for improved testing methods to prevent misdiagnosis of TB in deer, elk, and cattle.

Jeffrey J. Huse, D.V.M., New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, explained that the TB test required for interstate shipments of deer and elk prior to 1991 was ineffective and allowed many infected animals to evade detection and potentially spread disease throughout other herds.

In 1991, USDA advised states to replace the caudal fold test with a more effective test of the skin on the animal's neck. "After testing 8,000 deer in 85 herds, two additional infected herds were discovered in New York," Huse said.

"Since then, New York has taken the lead in implementing a control program including mandatory testing, quarantine of infected herds, and inspection of meat. Other states have been reluctant to implement TB control programs for farmed deer and elk."

Joseph S. Van Tiem, D.V.M., M.S., Huntsville, Md., called for improved diagnostic testing for tuberculosis in cattle.

"Traditional TB tests used in cattle will point to herds with the disease, but they are not sensitive enough to identify every animal infected," said Dr. Van Tiem, cattle diseases and surveillance staff, APHIS veterinary services.

"Existing tests aren't adequate in light of today's low prevalence. We need to develop the technology that allows us to identify all individual sources of infection," he said.

NIOSH Warns Of Deadly Hazard

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — According to the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH), Americans who use gasoline-powered pressure washers indoors are risking their lives.

A 35-year-old farmer recently died from carbon monoxide poisoning while using one of these washers in an enclosed barn. NIOSH warns all workers not to use these machines indoors — it can be a deadly mistake.

"We must act before this 'silent killer' strikes again. Workers must be aware of the hazard and prevent exposure to this potentially fatal gas: Carbon monoxide strikes quickly, and it strikes without warning," said NIOSH Director Dr. J. Donald Millar. The gas is colorless, odorless, tasteless, and gives no signs of its presence.

"It is critical that workers know when carbon monoxide can be a danger and how they can be protected," said Millar.

All gasoline-powered engines produce carbon monoxide. This gas can rapidly build up in any indoor area, and individuals can be overcome without even realizing they are being exposed. Confusion, headache, dizziness, fatigue, and weakness may set in too quickly for victims to save themselves.

Each of the victims interviewed by NIOSH expressed shock at how quickly they were overcome. A farm woman recently poisoned in Iowa said, "I was amazed at how it affected my ability to think clearly and to get out." Carbon monoxide poisoning can cause permanent brain damage, including changes in personality and memory. Once inhaled, carbon monoxide decreases the ability of the blood to carry oxygen to the brain and other vital organs. Even low levels of carbon monoxide can set off chest pains and heart attacks in people with coronary artery disease.

According to Vernon Meyer, swine housing specialist, Iowa State University, "Two-thirds of swine producers now use pressure washers for cleaning, and that number is expected to go up." As the market for these devices in agriculture and other industries continues to increase, it is essential that users be informed of the carbon monoxide hazard.

While electrically powered pressure washers are available, NIOSH has not evaluated the safety of these devices. If you are using gasoline powered equipment, take the following precautions:

- Do not operate machinery with gasoline engines inside any building.

Though warning notices in operating manuals advise that the equipment is not to be used without adequate ventilation, it can be difficult to determine how much ventilation is adequate. One episode occurred with three doors open and exhaust fans on.

- Remember that even small engines can produce deadly levels of carbon monoxide.

NIOSH will continue to investigate the problem of using gasoline-powered pressure washers in farm buildings and will address ventilation, warning labels, and freezing problems in an upcoming report.

Overestimates Of Corn Crop May Cause Income Loss

AMES, Iowa — Overestimates of the 1993 corn crop in the June USDA Supply and Demand report may cause a $200 million gross income loss to U.S. corn farmers in the next four months, said National Farmers President, Steve Halloran.

The report, released recently, estimates this year's corn crop at 8.5-billion bushels — precisely the same estimate USDA made in its May Supply and Demand Report. According to Halloran, National Farmers see no scientific evidence, nor on-farm evidence, that the two crop estimates should be an identical 8.5-billion bushels.

Since the report was issued, a month of extremely poor planting and growing conditions dramatically changed fall corn harvest prospects. National Farmers believes the June Supply and Demand Report should reflect observable on-farm conditions and stay consistent with scientific research. In a letter sent to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Michael Espy, National Farmers requests that USDA review all the negative factors that impacted the U.S. corn crop between May 1 and June 1.

According to Halloran, "such a review is necessary and if USDA chooses not to listen to our request, it should be prepared to shoulder the responsibility for needlessly causing U.S. corn farmers to lose in excess of $200-million in gross income."

In the case of corn planting, the June report shows 87-percent of the U.S. corn crop planted. The 5-year average percentage is 94-percent. The 10-year average is 95-percent.

Iowa State University corn research shows the effect of late planting on corn yields. Corn planted June 1 yields from 84-percent of what it yields if planted on May 1. Ohio State University research shows similar yield loss for late planted corn. Based on this scientific yield-reduction evidence and the clear fact that farmers are planting fewer corn acres, the June corn crop estimates should be significantly lower than the May estimate.

If USDA allows the reports' inaccuracy to stand, National Farmers grain department analysts estimate that the false supply signals the report sends to the marketplace will lower corn prices 10-cents per bushel on the next 2-billion bushels sold.

Halloran points out that in recent weeks, USDA made grain program changes that show its concern for the severity of corn planting problems. Unfortunately, the June Supply and Demand Report fails to reflect a parallel concern.

The state ASCS offices in Iowa, Indiana, and Illinois have extended the crop deadline due to late plantings or have extended the deadline for planting a cover crop on ACR/CU. Several other states are considering similar action. In Ohio, the state presidents of the National Farmers Organization, the National Farmers Union, and the Farm Bureau Federation have sent letters to the State ASCS Office requesting an extension of seeding ACR/CU acres as well as an extension of the deadline for crop certification.

The USDA in Washington, D.C. changed the prevented-planting rules on June 3, 1993 to allow producers who cannot get their spring program crops planted to drop out of the Acreage Reduction Program with no liquidated damages assessed. The change also allows farmers to plant soybeans, thus protecting crop base and maintaining eligibility for the marketing loan provisions. The USDA also re-opened the entry into the 0-50 or 0-92 program, whichever is applicable for producers who don't get their crops planted.

The extremely wet spring and late planting conditions prompted all these actions, None of these actions were anticipated by anyone on May 1, 1993. Consequently, the May USDA Supply and Demand Report appeared based on facts at that time.

Get Comforting Heat and Efficiency.

The Mahoning Outdoor Multi-Fuel Furnaces provide thermostat controlled heat by economically burning wood, coal or fuel oil. The furnace is placed 25-100 feet outside the structure to be heated, connections between the furnace and building are buried underground. Wood or coal is the primary burning fuel lasting 8-12 hours in the furnace For convenient, automatic firing the separate oil burner combustion chamber can provide heat until wood or coal burning is desired Both Wood/Coal & the Fuel Oil burners are enclosed to heat the same water tank The purpose of the firebox is to heat the water-filled tank surrounding the outside unit, this heated water is then circulated through underground pipes into your home A heating coil is installed inside your existing heat system The thermostat controls the blower which picks the heat off the coils and delivers warm air through existing ducts and registers. There are safeties which eliminate the danger of over-pressurizing the system and automatic shutdown in case of a power failure. The Mahoning Outdoor Furnace can also be connected to an existing hydronic heating system, that operates at 180° F or less, using fin tube baseboard, cast iron radiators or hanging hydronic heaters Only the thermostat and heating coils are installed inside your home, eliminating open fire dangers, smoke, dust and messy kindling wood boxes. Adjust the thermostat for the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace to your comfort setting and it automatically controls the water pump and blower to circulate heat to your home. You may set the thermostat for your existing heat system to back-up the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace when not in operation or in case the firebox is left to burn out An Aquastat senses the temperature of the water in the outside unit and automatically adjusts the combustion rate to maintain the correct temperature (normally 160 degrees).

Hot Water too...!

A Mahoning Outdoor Furnace is a heat exchanger By running a cold water line from your home to the outside unit, fresh household cold water can be heated and returned to the hot water plumbing in the house A tempering valve adjusts the hot water at the faucets to a range of 120° to 160°. This boiler system will adapt to any existing plumbing. Heat your pool & hot tub with energy generated by a Mahoning Outdoor Furnace!

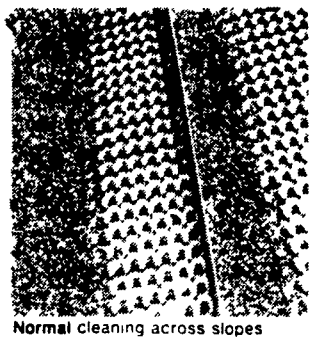
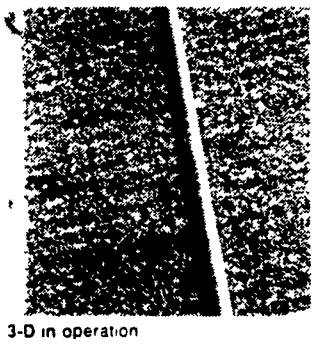
COMBINING SLOPES — THE MF 3-D CLEANING SYSTEM

MASSEY FERGUSON



Normal cleaning across slopes



3-D in operation

With the MF 3-D cleaning system, the crop is distributed evenly across the full width of the sieves, performance remains stable and output maintained.

The 3-D cleaning system provides dynamic slope compensation which means that the upper sieve moves sideways against the slope of the hill. The degree and direction of these movements depend on the inclination of the slope. Quick reaction and of course equal performance in any direction on slopes of up to 20%.

With the MF 3-D system you can operate at the same speed on slopes as on flat land. Daily performance can be maintained.

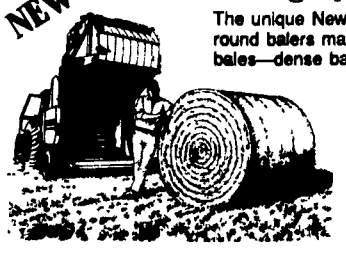
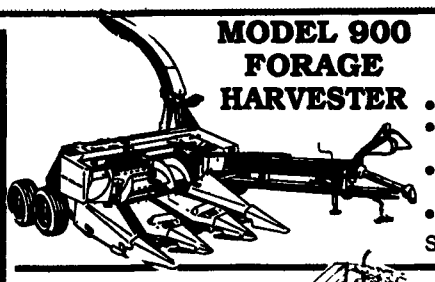
NEW! Exclusive design produces best-ever bales



The unique New Holland Models 650 and 660 Roll-Belt™ round balers make the best quality bales ever. Tight bales—dense bales. Good-looking, square-shouldered bales that hold up to the weather. The patented Roll-Belt design means fast, sure core formation, even in the toughest crops. The adjustable hydraulic belt-tensioning system puts maximum bale density control at your fingertips. And, you can choose from three optional automatic tying mechanisms for the smoothest package ever.



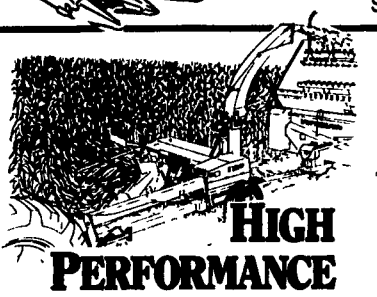
MODEL 900 FORAGE HARVESTER

TAKE CONTROL OF YOUR HARVEST

The Model 900 forage harvester puts you in control of your harvest:

- Rugged 21-inch, 12-knife cutterhead for a uniform chop.
- Exclusive flip-up feedrolls provide convenient access to the shearbar and smooth roll scraper.
- Electromagnetic clutches provide instant response in controlling feedroll and attachment drives.
- Optional Metalert® II metal detector protects cutterhead and your valuable animals.

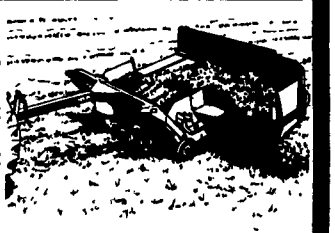
Stop in and let us show you how the Model 900 puts you in control.



HIGH PERFORMANCE LOW HASSLES

The high performance of the Model 790 forage harvester starts with the massive 12-knife cutterhead. It delivers a fine, uniform chop for high quality feed. The "790" is built tough to keep chopping season after season. And routine maintenance is easy to keep hassles to a minimum. Stop in and see for yourself.

RAIN OR SHINE



The New Holland Model 166 windrow inverter speeds drying time as it gently lifts, fluffs and turns windrows without roughing-up the hay. And keeping more of the protein-rich leaves intact means you'll get high-quality hay into the bale or silo fast!

The Model 166 features:

- 65-inch Super-Sweep™ pickup
- Adjustable pickup wind-guard and discharge chute
- East-to-lift overcenter handle
- Optional hydraulic drive
- Optional hydraulic pickup lift

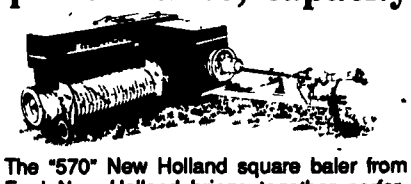
Best-in-class performance, capacity



The "570" New Holland square baler from Ford New Holland brings together performance and reliability, along with improved capacity.

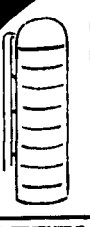
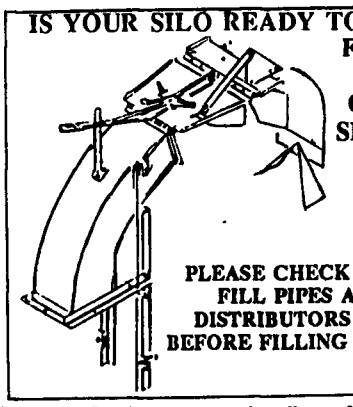
S & S SILO SERVICE



ATTENTION FARMERS
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

B.T.U.

"BUY THIS UNIT", or one like it to store your high-moisture shelled corn and save a lot of energy. With the cool spring and slow start for a lot of corn fields, this may be another harvest season coming up when the corn dries slowly...

about 10,000 bu. cap.
Shelled Corn
Poured Concrete
No Used Silos!
No Rebuilt Silos!
No Preowned Silos!!

In order to avoid hauling and drying costs, let us build a corn storage unit to preserve your valuable grain at 20%-30% moisture.

To keep your stored corn bright and yellow, you must protect it from oxygen and heat. Our 6" thick concrete walls reflect 38% of light beams, resulting in 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel, and 25 times more insulating power than steel.

Our 6" thick walls have a very low leak potential compared to pre-fab silos of any kind, and a very low maintenance requirement.

BEFORE SPENDING A LOT OF MONEY FOR ENERGY (B.T.U.'s) TO DRY YOUR CORN, YOU WILL DO WELL TO CONSIDER THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF OUR POURED CONCRETE SILOS...

To unload your corn, we can install the simple auger system, the Laidig 43 unloader, or the Flying Dutchman. Lets discuss the options, and what is best for your situation.

Purina Distinguished Dairyman Profile

The Kline Family owns and operates their 65 cow Ramona Holsteins herd near Myerstown, Lebanon County. Pictured above left to right are Sharon holding Joshua, Jason, John Kline and Duane Nolt, herdsman at the halter of Ginger. Ginger is an excellent 6 year old with 4 lactations totaling over 115,000 lbs. milk and currently at 126 lbs. milk/day.

The herd is fed a one group TMR utilizing their homegrown feedstuffs and Purina's "Ultimate EXT". In addition high producers are top dressed with the "EXT" according to production and body condition.

Feeding Purina from Umbergers of Fontana since September 1988 John sees real value in the nutritional service and research proven products they provide. He shares these results with using Ultimate EXT in his herd.

- The first-calf heifers are peaking higher and persisting longer
- Second-lactation cows milking extremely well- No sophmore slump!
- The cows have been breeding back earlier with calving interval down to 12.8
- Overall peak milk has improved
